SLAVS DRIVE FORWARD

Russian Attacks on Rumanian Front Admitted by Berlin to Have Been Partially Successful.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Nov. 29.—Two large Russian transports bound from Helsingfors to Revel were sunk the latter part of October as the result, it is the belief, of striking mines, says a Stockholm dispatch to the Overseas News Agency.

The transports are said to have carried the entire 428th Russian regiment. The regiment is said to have been on duty in Finland.

Reconciliation Impossible.

London, Nov. 29.—The Rhenish and Westphalian Gazette in an article on the principle of German peace, declares that the reconciliation of Germany and her western enemies is impossible, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to Reuter's. The paper declares it believes Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg recognizes this and adds:

"Our ultimate aim is to push through to the west and the ocean. Whoever offers resistance must be crushed."

Referring to the Balkans, the Gazette says:

"What the victor gets, he holds."

KAISER IN VIENNA AT EMPEROR'S BIER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Amsterdam, Nov. 29.—A Berlin official telegram says that the German Emperor arrived in Vienna yesterday forenoon, but left the city again this evening. Owing to a slight cold, the Emperor's physicians prevailed upon him to abandon his intention of attending the funeral of Emperor Francis Joseph. The telegram says:

"The German Emperor refused to renounce his duty of bidding farewell, both personally and as supreme lord of the allied German forces, to the deceased ruler. The Emperor especially requested that no official reception be accorded him. The Emperor stayed quietly at the bier of Francis Joseph, on which he laid a wreath. The day thus was devoted entirely to the memory of the deceased and to a talk with the young imperial couple, with whom the Emperor expressed an urgent desire to have a long visit in these earnest days."

STOCKHOLM IS INTRIGUE SPOT OF THE WORLD

Spies of Every Nation Busy Spying On Other Nation's Spies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Stockholm, Nov. 29.—This is the spy-center of the world. Here foe meets foe—but with his fingers crossed. It is neutral ground and the spy plays his ungrateful game in perfect safety.

"See that chap over there?" a friend asked, pointing across the lobby of one of the prettiest hotels in the world. "That is an Austrian military attache. The man he is talking to is a Russian from Petrograd. I know them both." There they were playing their games. Each trying to trick the other to some end, only heaven knew that.

"Never mind about locking your chest of drawers, or your bags or trunks," an acquaintance told me the day I landed in Stockholm. "Locks are no good here. If anybody wants to see what you have hidden away they will manage to do so. And they usually want to see."

There is perhaps no more fascinating spot anywhere than a certain great hotel here. In the world's most beautiful dining-room under a sort of colonade ranging alongside a formal garden where a superb lawn grows under a lofty glass dome, where huge palms and flowers grow in profusion and the tinkle of a fountain in the Venetian court is not much softer than the music of a hidden stringed orchestra, Germans and English, Austrians and French, Russians and Bulgars, Italians and Turks, Belgians and Hungarians and all the rest mingle at table. Not that they sit at the same table, but their elbows sometimes literally touch at adjoining boards.

Stockholm is easily accessible to all the warring countries. At the Central Railway Station every night, on adjoining tracks, are three trains. One goes north to Tornea, the Russian frontier town; one to Gergen whence one takes the boat for England and France; the third goes to Gothenburg, five hours by boat from Denmark whence an express whirls one to Berlin. The Russian train leaves first—about 9 p. m., the German train second, at 9:20. So on the platforms one sees mingling and jostling, German and British, French and Prussian and all the rest.

In the hotels one has the impression that each column conceals a spy and each palm two or three. And one is nearly right in this impression for they are as thick as fleas everywhere: Spys spying on unsuspecting persons, spys spying on spies and spies spying on spies set to catch spies. It is a great game. There is on record at least one case of one spy doing nearly all of these things at one and the same time, being simultaneously in the employ of France, England and Germany.

There are of course big games being played by men not ordinarily called spies: Diplomatic agents is the more dignified term. These are educated, cultivated men. And they do the finer, larger work. Smaller fry keep track of shipments to Russia, of the movement via Sweden of government agents, etc. Or in the case of the Allies—of the shipments of materials to Germany by boat, etc. Of course there are freelances who scurry around picking up scraps of information and selling the same for whatever the interested parties feel like paying. These are the rag-pickers of the profession.

Of course there are women spies, or women agents. These are not always used as Oppenheim and other romancers lead one to imagine, but there is just enough of truth in such stories to make these women interesting. Their great utility comes through being able to mingle in high circles where they can listen to the gossip.

"Listen, my dear," says one lady to another, "here is some great scandal: I promised not to tell but I must tell it to you, knowing you'll not breath it to a soul." And so it goes. Hotels are packed. Only by reserving a room days in advance can one find accommodation save by rare good luck. At tea time, at dinner and again at supper, the splendid restaurants here are jammed and tables are at premium. Champagne corks are popping like machine-guns. Everybody seems to have plenty of money and nobody appears to be stingy with it.

One sees many German people here. Here and there in dining rooms are German diplomats, army officers in mufti of evening clothes, and frequently they have their women-folk with them. These are wearing skirts quite as short as any seen in Paris and the cut of their gowns is proof that though Frenchmen and Germans are killing each other, Rue de la Paix styles have found their way to Unter den Linden.

This is the Great Cross Roads, the meeting place of the folks of the warring nations. Tonight, in the lovely supper-room, at adjoining tables, two men, their wives and daughters, all faultlessly dressed in evening clothes, hear each other talk, though in different languages. Tomorrow these two men may be leading charges at each other, over rainsoaked, shell-pitted ground. One may slaughter the other and leave the bloody, muddy corpse to be trodden on by a regiment of iron-shod men, leaving a woman without a husband, a family without a father. But tonight they dine elbow to elbow.

PAPER MILLS TO PAY BONUS TO EMPLOYES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Marinette, Nov. 29.—A plan for an increase in wages, which has been quite generally adopted by paper mills in various Wisconsin cities, was announced today by the Kimberly Clark company of Niagara, Wis.

Under the plan, employes who are steady and faithful, and who have been with the company for at least two full months, will receive on December 5, a bonus check for $12, no distinction being made between low and high paid men.

On February 1, the same procedure will obtain and will be repeated throughout the year, and probably as long as the present high cost of living continues. It is estimated that the various paper mills' payrolls will mean an extra expense of $1,000,000 during the year.

Same Practice in East.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 29.—Notices were posted in the factories of the United States Envelope company today announcing an "emergency bonus" to employes of ten percent. The executive committee announces the increase is made because of the abnormal increases in cost of living. The bonus will be paid on the fifteenth of each month until further notice. An additional bonus of 2½% will be paid to those employes who have lost no time during the month. Among the factories affected is one in Waukegan, where 2,500 employes will be benefitted.

RECRUITING PROBLEM HANDICAP TO NAVY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 29.—Battle efficiency of the Atlantic fleet, Admiral Benson, chief of operations, told the houes naval committee today, is improving but the recruiting problem still keeps ships from the active fleet. With thirty-seven battleships on the list, only fourteen are in full commission. The admiral said for practical reasons, he thought it better not to commission more than seventeen until enough of the new ships were available to make the total fighting line of twenty-five.

GIVE LIGHT ON SINKING OF MARINA

AMERICAN SURVIVORS ARRIVING IN NEW YORK GIVE ACCOUNTS OF SUBMARINE ATTACK.

TWO TORPEDOES FIRED

Declare That Second Torpedo, Which Was Fired Unnecessarily, Caused the Entire Fatality List.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 29.—A detailed report of the torpedoing and sinking of the British steamship Marina on October twenty-eight, off the southwest coast of Ireland, when nineteen persons, including six Americans, lost their lives, was given here today by forty-one horsemen, American survivors of the Marina, who arrived here as passengers on the steamship Tuscania from Glasgow.

Second Torpedo Fatal.

Jesse T. Hancock said the ship was torpedoed without warning, two torpedoes being fired, the first hitting her on the starboard quarter, and the second on the portside. He added, and his assertion was supported by the others, that the firing of the second torpedo was unnecessary, and had it not been fired, there would not in all probability have been any loss of life.

"It was shortly after three-forty-five P. M. on Saturday, October twenty-eight, when we were about sixty-five miles off shore, that we were attacked," said Hancock. "The first warning that we had was when the torpedo hit our ship, the explosion all but breaking her in two. Four boats were launched in eighteen minutes and it was while the fifth boat was being made ready, that the second torpedo was fired. Its explosion killed the remaining men on the deck, nineteen in all, including six of the horsemen.

No Aid From Submarine.

"The submarine was sighted by us shortly after the Marina went down. It came to the surface several hundred yards away but did not offer assistance. We floated in our boats for eighteen hours, the weather being cold with sleet and snow falling part of the time. We were first discovered by the lookout on a lighthouse. The lighthouse sent out signals to British patrol boats which soon appeared. Part of us were picked up by the patrol boat William, the others by the British ship Wadsworth, and we were landed at Castleton and Crosshaven, Ireland, from which we proceeded to Dublin."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Washington, Nov. 29.—Latest dispatches to the state department say the submarine which sank the American steamer Chemung on November twenty-six, flew the Austrian flag and that the steamer was destroyed by shell fire as well as torpedoes. They repeat there was no loss of life and that the crew had opportunity to leave the ship.

FRANCE MAY RAISE INCOME TAX RATE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Paris, Nov. 29.—The senate, which is debating the income tax bill, has adopted a clause taxing the profits of large stores of which the annual turnover exceeds 2,000,000 francs. The tax is one per cent on profits, or turnovers, from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000; two per cent up to 50,000,000; three from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000; four from 100,000,000 to 200,000,00; five above 200,000,000. An amendment proposing an all around tax of 2 per cent was rejected. Minister of Finance Ribot said that this would be hard on some of the big stores.

Birds Prove Drug on the Market and Price Slumps to 18 Cents—New York Women in Egg Boycott.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pittsburgh, Nov. 29.—With the public refusing to buy turkeys at high prices, the market here suffered another sharp slump today. Prices this morning were as low as 18c a pound. Shippers had been expecting to get 35c a pound, live weight. Some shippers rather than accept the low prices, sent loads of turkeys back to Ohio and West Virginia. Others sold for what they could get. Further price reductions are expected.

Egg Boycott in New York.

New York, Nov. 29.—The price of cold storage eggs at wholesale was one to two cents lower today than yesterday morning when the egg boycott began.

Eggs sold at 34c to 38c a dozen according to grade. The average price for fresh eggs was 63c compared with 55c at this time, a year ago. The price of fresh eggs showed no change from yesterday.

Some wholesale dealers asserted that the boycott would play into the hands of the foreign buyers. They say that men who want eggs for export, are waiting for a price reduction. The Housewives' League today continued active missionary work, to discourage the use of eggs.

Investigate in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—City, state and federal officials together with civic, women's and other organizations were working today in an attempt to solve the high cost of food stuffs problem. It was announced that municipal inspectors had discovered in storage about 800,000 eggs of questionable quality, while more than 2,000,000 eggs were found in cold storage houses, awaiting price increases. In addition government inspectors found 3,000,000 eggs stored in another warehouse. Charles F. Clyne, district attorney, began inquiry into charges that James E. Weitz, is the holder of 72,000,000 eggs in Chicago, and to learn if Mr. Wetz is not the actual owner who is backing the alleged attempted corner.

MAY LIFT EMBARGO ON WESTERN STOCK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Fear of a renewed outbreak of hoof and mouth disease in the central states was waning rapidly among livestock men here today. With encouraging reports from the suspected cattle in Kansas City, local packers, traders and officials of the union stockyards express a belief that the quarantine on cattle except for immediate slaughter from Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, at the yards in Chicago and East St. Louis, would be removed today.

Action, however, was awaiting the report of Dr. S. E. Bennett, head of the United States bureau of animal industry, in Chicago, who returned from Kansas City with cultures taken there. Arthur G. Leonard, president of the Union Stockyards & Transit company, announced that the International Live Stock Show will begin here Saturday, as planned.

Reassures Exhibitors.

Arthur Leonard, president of the Union Stockyards and Transit Company and of the International Live-stock exposition today sent the following reassuring telegram to 400 exhibitors of prize cattle.

"Doctors Bennett and Mather think the trouble at Kansas City is not foot and mouth disease, but a form of disease (stomatitis) that has affected horses in Nebraska and Colorado, and more or less in all markets. It shows a swollen tongue and formation of vesicles. It lasts about fifteen days, and leaves no bad effect. We have decided to hold the exposition and are notifying all exhibitors for their information and guidance."

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 29.—A woman, probably, will represent Kansas in the presidential electoral college. Hubert Lardner, chairman of the democratic state committee, said today that he was preparing to have Mrs. R. C. Leyman of Hutchinson chosen to go to Washington.

"Women aided materially in giving President Wilson his 87,000 plurality in this state," said Lardner. "I think it a fitting recognition to send one of the new voters to the electoral college with the Kansas vote."

PLAN PLAINER FARE TO FURTHER REDUCE COST OF DIET TEST

Efforts Will Be Made to Furnish For Chicago Diet Squad at 25 Cents A Day Per Person.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Plainer fare will mark the menus of the diet squad of the Chicago Health Department during the remainder of the attempt to demonstrate how to live well at reasonable prices, the second week of which began today.

Will Reduce Cost.

Dr. John D. Robertson, health commissioner, expressed the hope in the final week, the cost of feeding the twelve dieters might be cut to about twenty-five cents a day per person. The cost for the first week was thirty-three and two-third cents, exclusive of allowances for fuel, light, heat, service and other overhead expense.

Only two dozen eggs were used in the first week, these costing forty and forty-four cents a dozen. Thirty-five quarts of milk at nine cents, were used, chiefly for cooking. Economies were made, it was pointed out, by purchasing in large amounts, thus saving fractional weights and split nickel charges.

Students Plan Diet Test.

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—A menu that will cost thirty cents a day, compared to the forty cent diet now being tested by a special squad in Chicago, will be tried out by the Williamport Club, an organization composed of fifteen stuednts of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, professor of physiological chemistry at the university, who directed several food tests for the government, will prepare the menu which will go into effect after the Thanksgiving holidays. Some members of the club declare they have been accustomed recently to living on a 33c daily menu.

A typical breakfast, they said, included stewed prunes, a choice of cereals, two eggs, coffee and hot muffins. Luncheon: Vegetable soup, hamburger steak, baked potatoes, coffee or milk, and canned peaches. Dinner: Roast pork, mashed potatoes, canned string beans, baked macaroni, coffee or tea, and apple dumplings.

In Texas.

Benton, Tex., Nov. 29.—Five young men students of the Texas Normal College here are putting themselves through school and remaining healthy on an average of 19 cents a day for food per person. Careful buying from market wagons is part of their plan.

A specimen day's menu includes fruit, potatoes, bacon gravy and biscuits for breakfast. Potatoes, vegetables, cornbread fruit for lunch, and for supper meat, stewed fruits, bread and milk.

WAR, DIRTY BUSINESS PRISONERS DECLARE

Toerzburg, Transylvania, Nov. 29.—Prisoners of war being not unwilling to please their captors, their statements must be taken with a large pinch of salt. Though there is no officer of the enemy present, the prisoner of war cannot be sure that his statements do not become known to the powers into whose hands the fortune of war has placed him.

The Associated Press was able to interview here today two score Rumanian officers and men who had fallen into captivity near Rucar, some twenty miles south of here. No central power officer was within earshot.

One of the first men questioned was a Rumanian Jew, a man of some education and standing. He had served as a private. Unblushingly he said that he had looked for a chance to surrender. Questioned why, the man flew into a rage. He could not see why a Jew should fight for a government which in times of peace gave him no vote and no part in the affairs of his country. He hoped that the Central troops would get to Bucharest in a few days and hang them all, especially Bratianu and Take Jonescu who had so needlessly involved the country in war. Six other Jews were a little timid in their expressions but seemed to heartily agree with their spokesman.

Captured officers are non-interviewable, as a rule. The code, as well as tact, forbids that they be questioned, but one of them, a tall handsome fellow of about twenty-five, gave it as his opinion that the war was "une sale affaire"—a dirty business.

McDaniel followed his aged father and two sisters, all of whom testified that the prosecutor and his wife had been happily married.

TAX LEVY FOR YEAR 1916 IS $184,775

COMMISSION DECIDES ON BUDGET FOR COMING YEAR.—INCREASED PRICES BOOST TOTAL FOR CITY.

$25,062.00 OVER 1915

Comparison With Other Cities of Equal Population, However, Shows Local Rate Is Comparatively Low.

Janesville's tax levy for municipal purposes for 1916 is $184,775, an increase of $25,062 over last year.

After weeks of figuring and lopping off the city commission yesterday determined on and passed the budget. Although slightly over $25,000 in excess of 1915, nevertheless the levy is very low compared with other cities of Wisconsin of similar conditions, population, industrial wealth, etc., taken into consideration.

Figuring the rate per thousand City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund at the meeting announced that it will be $15.43. Although the budget is the largest ever raised by the municipality since its incorporation, the rate does not reach the high water mark of taxes since the commission form of government was adopted. In 1913 a tax of $15.44 was paid. This year's tax is just one cent below that.

Under the old council the mill tax was always in excess of that of the present year.

Other Cities Higher.

Appleton, with a population of 16,000 pays a rate of $17.50; Wausau, with a similar number, pays $22.30; Manitowoc, with 14,000, has a rate of $17.90, and Fond du Lac, with 18,000 population, pays $18.80. Getting down to bare facts, the Janesville budget is comparatively small and its mill tax far lower than those of other cities of the state of like size. These figures are for 1915 for the outside cities and as in Janesville the mill tax will be raised, making the total tax considerable in excess of the Bower City.

Nineteen hundred dollars was lopped off the bonded indebtedness of the city this year, making the total for 1916 just $31,000. Fifty-three thousand dollars was appropriated to the cause of public school education, a total of $5,000 more than last year.

The general fund was reduced $6,700 by reason of the transfer of $2,500 from the interest fund and from the city's share of saloon license money, taxes and interest.

Fire Protection High.

The fire and water fund was placed at $37,000, which is five thousand dollars under the first estimate but the same figure above the amount appropriated last year. The total includes a sum of $6,000 for a new motor fire apparatus and in addition $7,600 for additional cost of rental of fire hydrants over 1915.

Nothing was appropriated for the bridge fund, because if the city does decide to build a new structure at Jackson street it will have to be by bond issue.

The library board asked for $5,000 and was given a like sum, which is $200 more than the appropriation of last year. The industrial school board's $7,000 appropriation is $500 more than was allowed in 1915.

Street Work Money.

An increase of fourteen thousand dollars was made in the highway fund, the most important one to be considered and the one which gave weeks of work. As it resulted the city cut down on itself to the core so as to be able to continue along previous lines in its institutions, such as the library, the public schools and the industrial school.

Following is the budget as passed by the commission:

The Municipal Tax Levy.

	1916.	1915.
Bonded debt	$31,000	$32,900
School fund	53,000	48,000
General fund	6,700	18,000
Fire and water fund	37,000	23,000
Lighting fund	15,000	15,000
Bridge fund
Library fund	5,000	4,800
Memorial day fund	75
Industrial school fund	7,000	6,500
Highway fund	30,000	16,000
Total	$184,775	$153,713
Increase for 1916		$25,062

Tax Figures.

Taking the city rate alone the tax is $11.84 per thousand dollars. In 1915 it was $10.37, an increase of $1.47 in city taxes. The state tax last year was $1.47 and this year is $1.56, an increase of $.09. In 1915 the county tax was $1.93, and this year it is $2.03, a boost of $.10.

The figures in detail are appened:

	1916	1915	Increase
City rate	$11.84	$10.37	$1.47
State rate	1.56	1.47	.09
County rate	2.03	1.93	.10
Totals	$15.43	$13.77	$1.66

The general fund levy has been brought down to $6,700, although one of the biggest and most important features of the schedule. The city's share of saloon licenses, income taxes, interest on deposits and on bonds of the water works and taxes from the water works are accountable for the reduction here.

The levy in detail is as follows:

Salaries	$27,500.00
Mercy hospital	500.00
City share oiling streets	1,000.00
Music in parks	200.00
Account of ornamental light standards	2,500.00

LARGE DELEGATION FROM ROCK COUNTY AT BELOIT MEETING

Many Notable Talkers on Program of Older Boys' Conference—Many To Go From Janesville.

Indications at this time show that Rock county will undoubtedly maintain her enviable reputation for energy in boys' work, by sending to the Older Boys' Conference in Beloit Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week a larger delegation than any other county in the state. Last year this county had that distinction, even though the convention was held in the northern part of the state.

While complete returns are not in from either this city or from the outlying districts, it is probable that there will be about seventy-five Rock county boys who will join the throng of nearly a thousand at Beloit. Among those boys who will attend from Janesville, the following have already handed their names to Paul Richards, who as president of the conference is in charge of the local delegation: Robert Lane, William Scobee, Alfred Schooff, John Taylor, Clarke Finley, William Korst, Bernard Phenning, George Francisco, Edward Ewing. In addition to these delegates there will be a large number who will attend the more important sessions of the conference, and a still greater number who hope to be at the banquet, which is to be the feature of the convention.

From the smaller towns throughout the county there are to be exceptionally large delegations; workers have been most active in the rural campaigns to arouse interest in the coming meeting, with the result that practically all the towns of the county will be represented. Clinton will send 18; Rock Prairie, 2; Milton, 15; Milton Junction, 7; Edgerton, 12; Evansville, 6; Fulton, 2; Newark, 2; Shopiere, 2, making a total rural representation of sixty-one from this county.

The program arranged for the conference includes a number of men who are famous in their particular lines of endeavor. A. N. Cotton of New York, will speak during the conference; he is employed by the International Y. M. C. A. and devotes his attention to work among high school boys in all sections of the country. J. A. Whitmore, also of New York, is the secretary of the Federated Church Movement, and has done much work among boys. He is a graduate of Northwestern university and for a number of years was an athletic coach.

Ted Schroeder, the Y. M. C. A. secretary who has just returned from the war zone in Europe, where he was in the prison camps of the Austrian army, will talk on the life in those camps and on the work done by the Y. M. C. A. to make the conditions of the prisoners more bearable.

GIRLS' CONFERENCE WILL BE AT MADISON

Forty Janesville Young Women Will Attend Meeting Latter Part of This Week.

At the same tie that a convention is held in Beloit for the boys of the Sunday schools of this section of the state, there is also one to be held for the girls. It will be in Madison, and is called the Older Girls' Conference. It will begin on Friday afternoon and be continued over Sunday. There will go from this city on Friday morning about forty girls of the 'teen age to attend this conference. They are from the different religious denominations and are to be in charge of six leaders. They are Miss Mary Barker and Mrs. Crossman from the Baptist church; Mrs. Jacobs and Mrs. Brigham from the Methodist, and Mrs. Avery and Mrs. F. Sheldon of the Congregational. Mrs. Sheldon is leader of the Covenant club, and has put a great deal of enthusiasm into her work with the young girls. It is mainly through her efforts that so large a delegation is going from this city to attend the meeting. Fine programs are to be given every day and the young people are to be entertained in groups by the hostess associations of Madison. No doubt a pleasant and instructive session is to be anticipated by the young people who are fortunate enough to go.

TO SETTLE ESTATE AFTER FIFTY YEARS

Final Account Asked for In Estate of Brazilla Richmond of Lima, Who Died In 1863.

After an elapse of fifty-three years a final account will be rendered in the probate court in the estate of Brazilla Richmond, who died April 16, 1863, in the town of Lima, Rock county. James D. Richmond, a son, who has been administrator of the estate through all these years, has filed application for final account, which will be taken up by Judge Fifield at the special December term of the court.

At the time of the elder Richmond's death his farm of 120 acres in Lima was estimated to be worth $1,200, or $10 per acre. The land is now worth between $150 and $200 an acre, an increase of from 1,500 to 2,000 per cent.

The son and executor of the estate, now a man over eighty years of age, has resided continuously on his father's farm since the latter's death. He was the oldest of a family of ten children, two of whom, George C. and Charles H. Richmond, fought in the civil war. The elder Richmond's will was admitted to probate in the county court of Rock county on August 17, 1863, by Judge Amos P. Prichard. The appraisers of the estate were Cyrus Teetshorn and B. F. Palmer, but no report was filed. An order for sale was issued, but the settlement of the estate went no further.

The son, for fifty years past, has resided on the old farm; taking care of the family. He is now seeking a clear title to the property in order to make his own will. He has taken steps to buy off the other heirs, only one other of the elder Richmond's family now being alive.

Circle No. 2 will hold an all day meeting at Mrs. F. O. Humphrey's, 803 St. Mary's avenue, on Friday, December 1st. A large attendance is desired. Picnic dinner.

A TYPICAL DINNER FOR 3 COST $5.27

Investigation Shows Cost Was $1.75 A Person—Turkey is Largest Item, Price High.

From investigations made at local markets, grocers and households, it has been found that a typical Thanksgiving dinner for a family of three persons costs $5.27, or $1.75 a person. The high prices of this year caused many housewives to plan their dinners with great care, and to keep a careful account of comparative expenses as they ordered for the great feast. Many claim that the hardest part of it all was the buying, for though they all want the best, the best from the individual point of view is often not the most expensive.

Here is a table prepared from the reports of a number of Janesville women who assure their small family a most tempting dinner tomorrow:

Turkey, 10 lbs.	$3.50
Potatoes, Irish	.10
Potatoes, sweet	.10
Bread and sage dressing	.15
Butter	.15
Eggs	.08
Celery	.10
Cranberries	.13
Sugar	.10
Brussel sprouts and cauliflower	.20
Pumpkin pie	.30
Ice cream	.20
Coffee	.10
Milk	.05
American cheese	.10
Relishes	.10
Total	$5.27

The largest single item is, as usual, the turkey; this is selling this year at 35 cents a pound, higher than it has been for some time. Many housewives have lowered the cost by substituting duck or goose for the more costly gobbler. Others have preferred rabbit, and some have been fortunate to have venison roast for their dinner.

Butter is still hovering around the 47 cent mark, and eggs are at 40. As yet the sharp decline in the wheat market yesterday has had no affect on the local flour market, though dealers expect that there will be a drop in the near future. Chicago flour has already fallen off, but local dealers have a stock of the high price flour on hand must be disposed of.

Retail prices are always quick to follow advances in wholesale or produce prices, but are not nearly as elastic and mobile when a drop is looked for. Local dealers have offered a most tempting line of fresh vegetables for Thanksgiving.

LOCAL MARKETS.

Prices Paid Producers—Ton lots: Straw, $6.00@7.00; hay, $10@12; oats, 50@55c bushel; new ear corn, $24@$27; barley, $1.05@1.15; wheat, $1.50@1.60; ground corn and oats, $1.95 per 100 lbs.; scratch feed, $2.30@2.50.

GOVERNMENT FINDS IMPROVED HIGHWAYS RAISE FARM VALUES

Economic Survey Conducted for a Period of Six Years Show Interesting Results.

To determine as far as possible the exact dollars and cents effect on a county of the improvement of bad roads, specialists of the office of public roads and rural engineering of the United States department of agriculture made economic surveys in eight counties in each of the years from 1910 to 1915 inclusive.

This study of the increase in the values of farm lands in the eight counties reveals the rather interesting fact that following the improvement of the main market roads the increase in the selling price of tillable lands served by the roads has amounted to from one to three times the total cost of the improvements. The increase in values in those instances which were recorded ranged from 21 per cent to 80 per cent in Spotsylvania county, Va.; from 68 to 164 in Dinwiddie county, Va.; 70 to 80 in Lee county, Va.; 25 to 100 in Wise county, Va.; 9 to 114 in Franklin county, N. Y.; 50 to 100 in Dallas county, Ala.; 25 to 50 in Lauderdale county, Miss.; and from 50 to 100 in Manatee county, Florida. The estimates of increase were based for the most part upon the territory within a distance of one mile on each side of the roads improved.

In Spotsylvania county a careful record was made in 1910 of thirty-five farms located on the road selected for improvement. Of the seven farms sold in 1912, the prices actually paid show increases of from 37 to 116 per cent over the 1910 valuation. The average value after the roads were improved was $28.26 per acre, as compared with $17.91 previous to the improvement. In 1913, four transfers of farm land were on the basis of $30.11 per acre, whereas the properties were listed in 1910 at only $13.89 per acre. It appears that 1,451 acres sold in 1914 increased in value $28,500, or 80 per cent, or from $24.46 to $44.10 per acre.

In Dinwiddie county, Va., the actual price of forty-three farms sold or offered for sale from 1909 to 1914 ranged in price from $8.38 to $43.74 per acre before the roads were built, and from $24.79 to $73.60 per acre after the roads were improved.

In Lee county, Va., a study of eight tracts along the roads before and after improvement indicated that these properties increased about $23 per acre, or about 70 per cent.

In Wise county, Va., a study of eight representative farms located on roads showed that they increased in value from an average of $49.06 per acre before improvement to $79.44 after the roads were improved. There were increases in valuation in other sections of from $60 to $90, or even $100 per acre.

In Franklin county, N. Y., the figures seem to indicate that the change from earth, sandy and loam roads to bituminous macadam was followed by increases averaging $12.50 per acre, or about 30.7 per cent.

In Dallas county, Ala., careful investigation seemed to indicate that road improvement has added at least $5 to each acre of land within a half mile of improved roads. Tracts sold at from $8 to $10 per acre, were sold again after road improvement at from $20 to $25 per acre.

In Lauderdale county, Miss., the total assessed valuation of real property outside the city was $2,757,546. This increased in 1914 after road improvement to $3,133,309, or 15.4 per cent. Local real estate men place the increase in land values on account of improved roads at from 25 to 50 per cent.

In Manatee county, Fla., careful study of sales and real estate records indicated that the improvement of roads has added from 15 to 100 per cent, or at least $15 per acre, to the selling price of all lands within one-half mile of improved roads. This gives a total of $611,000, or more than twice the value of the bonds issued.

TOUCH OF ITALIAN ATMOSPHERE FOUND IN SALONIKI PORT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—A striking picture of street life in Saloniki, Greece, is given in a war geography bulletin of the National Geographical society, compiled from a communication to the society from H. G. Dwight.

"Somebody had told me that Saloniki was rather like Genoa," writes Mr. Dwight. "My first impression, therefore, was of a disappointing flatness, not in the least comparable to the lofty air—the piled, bastioned, heaven-scaling air—of the Italian city. Yet Saloniki scales heaven, too, in her more discreet manner.

"And there is even something faintly Italian about her. This is most palpable on the broad quay of the water front, especially when a veritable row of fishermen from the Adriatic are drying nets or sails under the sea wall, just as they do in Venice. The crescent of white buildings facing the blue bay would not look foreign in any Rimini or Spezzia.

"The White Tower, which is the most conspicuous of them, might perfectly have been the work of an Italian prince. Indeed, a Doge of Venice is said to have built the first edition of it, and Suleiman the Magnificent employed Venetians for his own.

"A splendid palace opens florid gates of hospitality there. A skating rink and a cinematograph offer their own more exotic entertainments to the passer-by. Cafes abound, overflowing onto the awninged sidewalk. Electric trams clang back and forth in proud consciousness of the fact that they existed when imperial Constantinople was yet innocent of such modernities.

"These cars take you around the eastern horn of the bay to the trim white suburb of Kalamaria, where consuls and other notables of Saloniki live, and where Sultan Abd-ul-Hamid II spent nearly four bitter years in the Italian Villa Allattini, looking out at the provincial capital which he and Nero embellished in their day. On the opposite horn of the crescent is the Latin-enough park of Besh Chinar—Five Plane Trees—where it is good to sip coffee and listen to music in the cool of the day.

"And if you did not know that greater prize and ornament of Saloniki for Olympus, the true Thessalian of Greek legend you might easily imagine it to be some white Alp or Apennine looming magnificently across the bay.

"Look a little closer, however, and this Italian appearing town has unfamiliar details. The white campanili that everywhere prick up above the roofs of weathered red are too slender and too pointed for true bell towers. Then, as you land at the quay you perceive that the electric cars are labeled in strange alphabets. The cafes do not look quite as they should, either.

"As for the people in them, a good many would pass without question. Just such slight and trim young men in Italy would sit at little tables on the sidewalk. Just such young women, rather pale and powdered as to complexion, rather dusky as to eyes and hair, would sit beside them. And you hear a good deal of Italian. But you hear more of other and less familiar languages. And those red fezzes are a new note. So are those of more numerous hay-colored uniforms that sat at no "caffe" in my Italian days.

"A more striking note is afforded by numerous dignified old gentlemen taking their ease in their bath-robs, as it were, slit a little up the side and tied about the waist with a gay silk girdle. Over the bath-robe they usually wear a long, open coat lined with yellow fur, which guards them from the cold in winter and in the summer from the heat. And none of them is without a string of beads, preferably of amber, dangling from his hand and giving him something to play with.

"Such an old gentleman should be accompanied by an old lady, who contributes what is most characteristic to the local color of Saloniki. The foundation of her costume is a petticoat of some dark silk, and a white bodice crossed below her throat—a very thin bodice, cut low at the neck and palpably unstiffened by any such mail as western women arm themselves with.

"Over this superstructure the old lady wears a dark satin bolero lined with fur and two striped silk aprons—one before and one behind. The latter is caught up on one side, some corner of it being apparently tucked into a mysterious pocket. But the crown and glory of the old lady is her headdress—a sort of flat frame, tightly wound about with a stamped or embroidered handkerchief, and crowned with an oval gilt plaque set off by seed pearls. Whatever its color, this creation invariably ends in a fringed tail of dark green silk, also ornamented by a gilt or gold plaque of seed pearls, hanging half way down the old lady's back. In this wonderful tail she keeps her hair, of which you see not a scrap, unless at the temples. And about her throat she wears strings and strings of more seed pears.

"She is, this decorative, this often extremely handsome old lady, a mother in Israel. The old gentleman in the gaberdine is her legitimate consort, while many of the modernized young people at the cafe tables are their descendants—very many. A dozen different estimates of the population are given, varying according to the race of the informant; but they all agree on the point that Saloniki contains not far from 150,000 people, and that more than half of them are Jews."

SIMPLE SERVICES FOR HIRAM MAXIM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 29.—Marked by the most extreme simiplicity in accordance with the late inventor's wishes, the funeral services over the body of Sir Hiram Maxim, who died November 24, were held today. There were no flowers nor crepe. No official representatives from numberless societies and organizations of which Sir Hiram was a member, were present. The coffin, made of plain oak, was carried to the West Norwood cemetery chapel in an automobile.

F. J. Gould, head of a group of free thinkers, called the "Religion of Humanity," conducted the service. Sketching Sir Hiram's life and religious views he said:

"He typified one of the greatest of American ideals—efficiency. In America he learned to abhor slipshod methods and to strive only for the best in everything. * * * As for religion, he was convinced that civilization and theology no longer were compatible. He opposed all missionary work among the non-Christian people, and believed firmly there would be a great moral and religious upheaval in the world during the twentieth century."

JURY SAYS WOMAN DIED FROM HANGING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Delavan, Nov. 29.—After a careful examination by Dr. Daniel Hopkinson, a Milwaukee pathologist, the coroner's jury declared that the death of Mrs. Lew Smith, who was found hanging from a hook in her kitchen on Sunday morning, was declared to be due to strangulation by hanging. Mr. Smith was exonerated from any charge of having killed his wife.

The sentiment was strong for an examination, and accordingly District Attorney Charles Sumner called for one. Mrs. Smith increased her life insurance a few weeks ago, saying at the time that she wanted to be sure her children had an education in case anything happened to her.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the home.

CHINESE DEVELOP LOVE FOR COUNTRY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Shanghai, Nov. 29.—Recent celebrations throughout China of the fifth anniversary of the republic indicate clearly that the Chinese are undoubtedly developing a national consciousness. Lantern parades and patriotic meetings were held even in remote sections. The celebrations were not forced upon the public by official orders, as was the case frequently under Yuan Shi-kai's regime.

Regret concerning the present troubled political situation characterized the general comment of Chinese newspapers and Chinese speakers on the occasion of the anniversary celebration.

During the five years of its life the republic has had two important resolutions in addition to the movement which resulted in the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty. There have also been many local movements of minor importance, which resulted in considerable loss of life and property.

Bandit leaders and unscupulous politicians have exploited various parts of the country, and there has been corruption to a degree not excelled by the Manchus. However, throughout all this disorder and throughout the present struggle between parliamentarians and the military party, it has been possible to detect a growing love of independence and of country, which has finally resulted in the firm establishment of President Li Yuan-hung in the affections of the public.

Minor politicians, leaders of various political factions are carrying on a bitter struggle, but Li Yuan-hung stands clearly above these factional fights, and is generally regarded by the Chinese of all classes as an absolutely honest and partiotic leader.

CIVIL WAR NURSE, 102, DIES AT RACINE HOSPITAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Racine, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Harriett Stewart Herrington, 102 years of age, probably the oldest woman in southeastern Wisconsin, died last night at a hospital after a brief illness. Mrs. Herrington served as a Civil war nurse, receiving her appointment from General Grant personally. At that time she sold her household effects and used the proceeds in relief work among the soldiers. It is said she saved the lives of two of the wounded by permitting transfusion of her blood. Mrs. Herrington came to Racine county in 1860 and since the Civil war had resided on farms in this vicinity.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Tomorrow the nation gives thanks for the benefits which we have enjoyed during the past year. From the Atlantic to the Pacific from Maine to California, and Oregon to Florida, along the border of the Rio Grande where our soldier boys are camped, to the frozen wilds of Alaska and the tropical climate of the Philippines and Hawaii, wherever the stars and stripes are thrown to the breezes of the heaven, thanks will be given for the favors of the divine providence. Little did the Pilgrim Fathers in their little colony on the Massachusetts coast think when they set aside a day for prayer and feasting, that nearly three hundred years later over a hundred million people would observe the day in some form or manner.

The Christian Science Monitor calls particular attention to the president's proclamation by saying:

"In his proclamation appointing Thursday, November 30, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, in accordance with a long established custom in the United States, President Wilson, while recognizing the countless and inestimable blessings which have come to the country in the past year, found himself unable to avoid reference to the tragedy that has 'darkened the whole face of the world.' In the midst of peace and happiness at home, 'our thoughts' he says, 'dwell with painful disquiet upon the struggles and suffering of the nations at war, and of the peoples upon whom war has brought disaster without choice or possibility of escape on their part.' 'We cannot,' he adds, and here he voices a feeling as widespread as the territory of the republic, 'think of our own happiness without thinking of their pitiful distress.'

"The highest of human sympathies are aroused in the Thanksgiving season. Even in ordinary circumstances the average person, at this time of year, is prompted and moved to look beyond self and all selfish considerations. The circumstances are now extraordinary to an exceptional degree, by reason of the prolongation of the conflict abroad, in their compelling appeal to the charity and generosity of the people of the United States, and this fact was undoubtedly in the thought of the President when he urged in his proclamation that the day he was appointing for Thanksgiving be employed beyond the mere expression of sympathy for the stricken people of the world.

"There must, will, one may feel sure, be agreement, unqualified and hearty, with the President's position that there is, in this connection, no better way in which the people of the United States can show their attitude toward the people of the struggling nations than by contributing toward the relief of their privations. Response to this counsel and recommendation will no doubt be general. If the people of the United States are desirous of expressing real gratitude for the blessings that have come to them, for the peace, comfort, and prosperity which they are enjoying, they can do it most effectively in denying themselves the luxuries, as well as the frivolities usually incident to the Thanksgiving season, and turning in to such relief funds as they may choose every penny they can spare. How much the people of the United States may do to ameliorate distress throughout the war-infested earth can be measured only by their resources.

"Beyond most of the peoples of the world have they received; beyond all of their benevolence in the past they should give. Thanksgiving of the year 1916, in the United States, should be made memorable in history as a day in which the whole population, forgetting all else but brotherly love, arose as one man and gave freely of their abundance to the needy of all the troubled nations."

THE REAL REASON.

There are always two sides to every question and one of them appears to be the car shortage problem. Right here at home the lack of an adequate supply of coal is sharply felt, not only in Janesville, but throughout the middle west. The railroads are of course blamed for this shortage by the cry they have not cars enough. The eastern magazines and newspapers have gone into the question pretty thoroughly and one of them has the following editorial on the car shortage problem which may throw a new light on the subject to many readers.

"There are numerous investigations of freight congestion under way by state and federal commissions. All these in time will doubtless discover that more freight is being offered than the railroads can handle with present equipment and facilities. They may be expected to make sage recommendations for shippers and railroad managers that would be valuable if practicable. And once more the railroads will be convicted of sinning against the public welfare.

"If people really want to know why, let them read the bulletin of the American Railway association. This shows that the railroads have a surplus of freight cars idle for a greater part of the year—in some years from nine to eleven months of the twelve. But on Nov. 1 of this year there was a shortage of over 108,000 cars necessary to move the freight offered.

"Look at the single item of agricultural products now being hurried to market. In the past week the receipts of wheat, corn and oats alone at the eleven principal primary markets and the shipments to seaboard were more than 33,000,000 bushels. The meat and lard shipments run into millions of pounds. High prices are sending cattle, sheep and hogs to market in an endless stream. One-third more cotton has been received at seaboard points than at the same period of last year, and the interior movements are in the same proportion.

"Legislation has done its best to drive shipping from the Pacific coast, and in consequence freight that should go by water comes overland to Atlantic ports. This makes an additional demand for cars at a time when the industrial part of the nation is straining every nerve to meet the demand for manufactured goods and secure the necessary raw materials. Terminal facilities are so inadequate that goods are literally warehoused in cars. The Commercial West speaks of trainloads of grain standing for eleven days in the siding.

"Who is to blame for all this? The coal dealer tells the consumer that it is the railroad, and takes from him a pound of flesh that Shylock might envy. The farmer of the Middle West whose grain is piled up in the open, waiting shipment, is told that it is railroad greed that denies him cars.

"Does not the fault lie in state and national regulation of the railroads, giving too little and asking too much? Railroads cannot supply service and facilities at a loss."

HIGHWAY WORK.

Highway experts finishing their season's work, are emphasizing the growing difficulty of the problem of street maintenance. Under the strain of heavy motor trucks and an incessant stream of pleasure cars, highways regarded as permanent a few years ago are today all worn out. Many streets in large cities are a disgraceful surface of hollows and protruding rocks.

Highway building authorities emphasize the need of putting trained men in charge of this work. The time has gone by when road construction can be passed out as a political job.

In the majority of rural districts, road work was formerly regarded as the perquisite of local political workers. In many communities, to distribute the pork as far as possible, highway work would be given to a large number of men, each taking a little strip in his charge, but none of them possessing any competence for this undertaking. The result is seen in the enormous road bills now being paid, and the miserable condition of so much of the road mileage. The road users are a powerful body numerically, and politicians will do well to cut out politics in dealing with them.

WINTER NEEDS.

In planning your winter activities, your expenditures and your social engagements, do not fail to forget there is going to be a call upon your pocketbook for subscriptions for charitable purposes more than ever. Even though there is plenty of work, there are many families who will feel the hardships of the coming months more than you anticipate, owing to the increased cost in actual living expenses. Be prepared, therefore, to give from your store of wealth for those less fortunate and give it gladly when the time comes.

If mail is sent by airship as is proposed, it is believed that the office-seekers will no longer be principled against competitive examinations for the jobs.

The congressmen will soon be leaving for Washington determined faithfully to stick it out there until the vacant clerkships are filled.

Among the earthquakes, fires, floods, and other calamities of 1916, there are a good many people who include five states going dry.

Billy Sunday in his Boston meetings attacks women cigaret smokers, but it's only in high life that that low trick is found.

It will take several of those new ten cent pieces before the dusky waiter can recognize their artistic beauty.

The Daily Novelette

THE DAILY NOVELETTE ... . LITTLE FIDO.

(A Dog Story)

They simply could not break Fido of his habit of chasing wagons and snapping barkily at their hind wheels.

He loathed in particular red wagons and pink wagons, but he was not too proud to chase any colored wagon when there were no red ones or pink ones about.

On the afternoon our story opens, Fido, with a sudden spring, dragged his chain from his fair mistress's hand and set off at full speed and full cry for a wagon whose hue was brand new to him, for it was a pale shade of lemon.

"Fido! Bum cak—come back here!" cried his fair mistress.

But Fido (who by breed was a black dog with a white spot and a half) raced on in his self appointed mission.

Just then a strange thing happened. The wagon did something no wagon had ever done before.

It stopped!

Fido's fair mistress fainted in her tracks and the car tracks, for Fido suddenly disappeared.

It was the dog-catcher's wagon.

Implacability.

"Remember the magnanimous monarch who said that he destroyed his enemies by making them his friends." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "But think of the bad company you are liable to get mixed up with by following that practice."

A MOMENT WITH THE MUSE

On Food and Eating.

I went into a swell cafe where people had their dinners; I went to hear the music play and gratify my inners. "Now, will I blow myself tonight," said I, as I was seating, "a steak; it is a pretty sight when one is fond of eating. I feel that I could eat a horse if I knew how to stew it; a horse or ox altho of course one mustn't overdo it." I ordered quite a bit at that and while the food was brewing, I watched the people as they sat a-munching and a-chewing. And reader does it seem to you?—I'm sure it did to me then—some people at their eating do make eating seem quite heathen. I watched a fat man down the aisle, I watched him and I listened how eagerly he fed the while; his eye it gleamed and glistened. He quaffed his bowl with vulgar haste, his motions were so speedy he never paused at all to taste he was so very greedy. I turned to watch another guy who'd had a hearty dinner. A stupid look was in his eye. Thinks I, "Now yonder sinner would better get the sun and sky for though he's very wealthy, he'll find at last he cannot buy a stomach that is healthy. Whose stomach balks I think he feels small aptitude for laughter and I am sure that at my meals I'll be more calm hereafter."

"Is Mrs. Fore-Flush in?"
"Why no, she's not at home," said Bridget Bares.
"Oh, that's too bad- Where did she go?"
"She went upstairs!"

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Dr. Price's, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

There is no alum nor phosphate in

ADVISES STOCK MEN TO USE PRECAUTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Nov. 29.—Concerning the probability of another foot and mouth epidemic and the condition in Wisconsin, Dr. O. H. Ellason, veterinarian of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, said today:

"There may be nothing but a good scare to the suspected stock in the Kansas City stock yards. This happened in a conspicuous place. This department has had a good many calls to suspected cases and there have been "anxious moments" for a few days, while deputy veterinarians guarded and waited developments and until positive diagnosis could be made.

"It should remind stock owners that it may be well to still use precaution, at least to the extent of not going to see stock that is reported sick.

"Veterinarians must still be on guard for the appearance of this disease. There is no doubt that there will be future outbreaks."

"ANGEL OF BLIND" BACK FROM FRANCE

Miss Winifred Holt, photographed on her return from Paris.

Miss Winifred Holt, American woman who is known throughout France as "the angel of the blind," has just returned to this country after having spent more than a year and a half in organizing and carrying on a hospital for blind soldiers in Paris. In that time, she says, more than three hundred men blinded in battle were taught useful occupations through funds raised in the United States.

WANT CITY TO PAY FOR THEIR INJURIES

Mr. and Mrs. Martin G. Moe Allege Damages to Selves When Pile of Dirt Tips Buggy.

Through their attorney, John L. Fisher, Martin G. Moe and his wife, Charlotte, yesterday presented a communication the city commission to the effect that the city would be held for the damages alleged to have been sustained by them when they were tipped from their rig and injured at the rear of the Shurtleff company factory on Park street a month ago.

They claim a pile of dirt from a building excavation was left unguarded at night and that no warning lights were displayed in the street nor on the dirt to warn them to safety.

Mr. Moe will settle for $250. His wife stipulated no particular sum but alleged that she was injured and as a result suffered poor health and is at present handicapped from the occurrance.

The communication was presented by Commissioner Roy M. Cummings. It was directed to the attention of City Attorney Charles H. Lange.

OBITUARY.

Bennett R. Moyle.

Bennett R. Moyle, who has lived in Janesville but six weeks, died early this morning at the Mercy Hospital, after a prolonged sickness of about six months from a complication of disorders. Mr. Moyle was born in December, 1877, in Raymond, Racine county.

Mr. Moyle was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, and for a number of years had preached in various parts of the country. At one time he was in northern Wisconsin, but afterwards accepted a pulpit in Georgia. Up until the time he was forced to give up active work on account of ill health, he had been preaching in Oklahoma. Six weeks ago he came to Janesville to visit at the home of his sister, Mrs. M. S. Kellogg, at the Kellogg Nursery, where he could rest. He underwent a serious operation Monday morning and never rallied. He gradually became weaker, however, until death ended his struggles this morning. Mr. Moyle was a most popular minister, and always won the love and admiration of his congregations no matter where he went. The few people whom he was able to meet in Janesville will be greatly shocked to learn of his death. Until the last of his brave fight he was patient and cheerful with all those around him.

He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. T. Moyle, two brothers, Owen R. of Racine and Isaac W. of Big Bend, Wis.; and five sisters, Mrs. Adie L. Flett, Milbank, S. D.; Mrs. Ellen L. Kellogg of this city; Mrs. Laura Wright, Mrs. Winifred E. Peterson and Avis Moyle of Whitewater.

The funeral services will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. M. S. Kellogg, at nine o'clock Friday morning. The body will be taken to Yorkville, Wisconsin, where further services and the interment will be held.

Spohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Spohn, of Chestnut street, were married at ten o'clock this morning by the Rev. Father Mahoney. The young couple were attended by Miss Marjorie Boylan, a friend of the bride, and James Spohn, brother of the groom. Both young women were attired in white, the bride's gown being white chiffon with silver lace and satin bands. She wore a corsage bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley, and carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers. Miss Boylan's gown was of dainty white organdie with corsage bouquet of pink roses and lillies of the valley. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about sixty, were served a two-course breakfast.

The home was most beautifully decorated, green and white being the color scheme, with white chrysanthemums in profusion.

As the bridal party entered the home Mendelssohn's wedding march was most efficiently rendered by Miss Sarah Hickey.

The wedding gifts were most beautiful and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. Many people from out of town attended.

The young couple left at 12:55 for a trip through the northern part of the state, visiting several cities before returning.

HORSES STOP CAR; SAVE MAN'S LIFE

Animals, Struck By Trolley, Become Wedged on Track and Protect Farmer From Injury.

Albert Schultz, a farmer, narrowly missed serious or fatal injuries at the corner of Dodge and South Franklin streets yesterday, when his surrey and team were struck by a Janesville Traction company car. Schultz was driving west on Dodge street. The car, No. 27, in charge of Motorman Leo Gherke, was on the up-town trip. The front part of the car hit the rig and hind quarters of the outer horse. Schultz was thrown directly on the tracks, but somehow the horses and car became wedged together, stopping further progress of the car. It was only this that saved the man.

The surrey was damaged considerably, the front wheels being smashed beyond repair and the whiffletrees being broken as well as the dash. The harness was also spoiled. Schultz escaped with only a few minor cuts and bruises, but came near to furnishing a third fatality on the local street railway tracks within a period of a month.

CITY TAKES OVER FREE DENTAL CLINIC

Innovation of Civic League Now Municipal Proposition—Appropriate $300 for Work.

Janesville's free dental clinic for school children is to be taken over by the city from the Civic League which inaugurated the idea a year ago. Mayor Fathers at the meeting of the city commission yesterday introduced a resolution to that effect and it received the unanimous approval of the commissioners. A sum of three hundred dollars has been set aside in the tax levy for the work. The resolution read that the clinic was to be continued throughout the remainder of the school year.

Three local dentists hav expressed a willingness to devote a half day of their time each week until June. They are to be compensated by the city which will furnish necessary supplies. The room in the city hall used for the clinic last year and which was fitted up by the city, is to be used again for this purpose.

Advancing Prices Effect Local Cigars

Janesville Manufacturers Are the Last to Give in to Increased Costs.

After long and strenuous battle against the fast advancing cost of cigar production, in order to retain present high quality, our local cigar manufacturers have at last found it necessary to advance prices to the dealers; this means that the practice of selling six for twenty-five cents, of the best grade of five cent cigars will be abandoned. This move, by the cigar men, will cause little surprise by the trade interested, in fact the wonder is, they held out so long; almost all of the leading cigars made by large eastern concerns advanced several months ago, from two to four dollars on the five cent quality, and four to six dollars per thousand on ten cent goods.

Janesville has gained splendid reputation for the manufacture of cigars of high character, but has never enjoyed deserved support of our local smokers; if this industry received fair encouragement, we would have several large factories here, employing hundreds of well paid, skilled workmen, instead of the few now employed; but, even now, the weekly pay roll in the many factories amounts to fully five hundred dollars, which helps some, and while we are all interested in bigger, better Janesville, we should not forget to call for, and insist on getting our home manufactured cigars, and be assured of best quality.

The dealers will, no doubt, pay the advance the cigar men will ask without protest, because they recognize the fairness of the demand, and know that their only chance for future profits is in patronizing independent manufacturers, thereby preventing this industry from getting into the hands of few large concerns the same as the smoking tobacco and cigarette business is at the present time. We, as consumers, can each do our share by smoking, and boosting our home product; this will be but simple act of fairness, to deserving class of home business men. Call for, and see that you get, Janesville cigars when you want the best smoke obtainable.

HUNGER IS STARING GERMANY IN FACE; FOOD PRICES SOAR

Elkhorn Man Lately Returned From Holland Describes Dire Need Experienced By German People.

Hunger stares Germany in the face and food prices are soaring, according to Theodore Jensen of Elkhorn, lately returned from Holland, where he has spent the past year in a hospital undergoing special treatment. So abject is the need of the German people for food that smuggling across the Holland border is continually in progress. Not only are all kinds of food scarce, according to Jensen, but government supervision of the strictest sort controls the consumption of all food. People have money, but there is little to buy. Notwithstanding these conditions, the reports that the war will soon end are entirely unfounded from the German angle, at least, for Germany is ready for even greater sacrifices and privations.

The Elkhorn Independent publishes the following interview with Jensen, which gives some facts which are not reported in the cable dispatches or in mail letters, all of which are subject to censor:

Meat a Dollar a Pound.

"Each adult person is allowed only one-half pound of meat each week, and that costs about a dollar a pound. The price is fixed by the government and retailers are not allowed to charge more than the fixed price. The butcher shops are opened on Wednesdays and Saturdays for the distribution of what little meat they have for sale. Hours before the shops open the people form in long lines before the doors, literally hundreds of them waiting for their turn. Often the supply is exhausted before all are served, and those coming last must go without.

"Every Monday morning the head of each German family is given a card entitling the bearer to a certain amount of food. If these cards become lost or if the allotted amount of food is consumed before Sunday night only fast or aid from friends will tide over the difficulty. With the half pound of meat is allowed one loaf of bread, one egg, seven potatoes and a pat of butter. Soap is a real luxury, a very small piece costing 50 cents. Flour sells for fifty cents per pound.

Smuggle Cows From Holland.

"Cows are worth about $150, and many are smuggled across the line from Holland. If the owner is able to smuggle the cow into a city and sell direct to the consumer he may receive as much as $400 for the one cow. If he is caught, the animal will be taken away from him by the government and he will receive about $150 for it.

"Near Mr. Jensen's old home a small stream forms the line between Holland and Germany. It is a stream about fifteen feet wide and four or five feet in depth. Soldiers patrol the banks in each side, the German soldiers on one side, soldiers of Holland on the other. Often during the night the starving German women come to the stream, cross it, and go into Holland for food. If they are caught with their booty it is taken from them and they are allowed to return, but if a Holland citizen is caught smuggling he is given a jail sentence. Often the soldiers can be bribed, especially the Germans, and then the smuggler has a chance to make considerable money from his goods.

Horses Also Scarce.

"Horses, too, are scarce and expensive. Before the war it was the policy of the German government to take for itself all the best horses between the ages of 18 months and 15 years. One day each year the farmers took their horses to the cities, where the government officials selected those they wanted. The farmer was allowed to keep them, but they were the property of the government. Now the government takes all that are sound and there is a great scarcity of horses in Germany, good ones that are smuggled in selling for as much as $1,000 each.

"The same sort of supervision which governs the distribution of food applies to clothing. When one wants a new suit of clothes the old suit must be taken to the proper officials, who inspect it, and if necessary issue a certificate which must be presented when the new suit is purchased.

Germany Will Fight On.

"'We hear many predictions that the war will soon cease,' said Mr. Jensen, 'but Germany will fight until the last man is killed if need be. The soldiers do not have enough to eat, but they have to fight. Germany has gone too far to stop now.'

"Mr. Jensen took the ship at Rotterdam to come to this country. Before sailing every passenger was searched, as was the ship, baggage, etc. When near England the ship was stopped, and again every passenger, all baggage, and the ship were searched. The trip required nineteen days to complete."

NEWS NOTES of MOVIELAND

By DAISY DEAN

Word comes from New York that Mary Alden has left the screen and transferred her activities temporarily at least to the stage. Miss Alden was seen last on the screen in Mary Pickford's new picture, "Less Than the Dust." She was the young mulatto girl in "The Birth of a Nation," and was seen later as the wife in "The Battle of the Sexes."

Miss Alden, who is something of an artist and linguist as well as an actress, was born in New Orleans. She is a grand-niece of the famous southern commandant, Gen. Beauregard.

SUGGESTIONS

Director Sherwood MacDonald is persona non grata at the home of a charming couple of his company's stars.

There's a new and incomparable infant at that house, and the director was persuaded by droll amateur humorists of the company to submit to the proud father a list of names for the child, suggested by the aforesaid humorists.

The list was Prunella, Tansy, Castoria, Gingerella and Fillum.

DISTINCTION

Frank Borzange can strike a match with his thumb nail. Eugenie Besserer can and does make good chicken pie. Al W. Filson grows alligator pears at his residence in Los Angeles.

Einar Linden's chief claim to distinction aside from the artistic excellence of his work as a movie actor, is that in 1914 his leg was broken by an automobile belonging to President Poincare of France.

MOVIE WRITERS

Emmett Campbell Hall, movie author, won a film company's scenario contest, and $250.

CONCERT FAVORITES PLEASE AUDIENCES

First Number of Methodist Church Lyceum Course Was Great Success.

An enthusiastic welcome was given the Concert Favorites at the Cargill M. E. church last evening. The audience overflowed the auditorium into the Sunday school room, and hearty applause after each number inforced the three young ladies that their work was well appreciated.

This concert was the first on the Century Lyceum course which will be presented at the Methodist church this winter.

Miss Lillian Johnston is both a beautiful singer and a charming reader. She has the ability of rendering selections the people love.

Miss Bales has a brilliant dramatic soprano voice, while Miss Shearer's voice is a deep, rich contralto. Their costume singing was a feature that was very attractive.

BESSEY PLAYERS IN "A PAIR OF SIXES"

Laughable Comedy Well Handled By Stock Players at New Myers Theatre Last Evening.

H. H. Frazee's very laughable farce-comedy, "A Pair of Sixes," was presented in the most capable manner at Myers Theatre last evening by the Bessey Players. Every laugh producing line was spoken in a manner to give the audience the most fun out of it.

If this work of last evening is an indication of the ability of the company in the rest of their repertoire, Janesville stock-play fans will see some very good attractions.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

"A World of Pleasure."

Manager Bransky, after months of negotiations with the Shubert offices, is now able to definitely announce a presentation for one night only of the biggest musical event of the present theatrical season. "A World of Pleasure" is booked for Sunday evening, December 10th. The entire original company of 125 players who were in the New York and Chicago runs will be seen here when this sensational New York Winter Garden musical extravaganza will be presented.

Janesville is most fortunate in getting this big show and it was only after the hardest work on the part of Mr. Bransky that it was obtained for this city. A big guarantee had to be given, and when it is considered that neither Madison nor Rockford will play this attraction and that Janesville is the only one-night stand in the state that gets it, Janesville playgoers are indeed fortunate in having as progressive a theatrical man as Manager Bransky in charge of affairs at Myers theatre.

"Prudence the Pirate" is the title of a charming picture at the Majestic tonight. By error it was advertised to be shown last night.

The Laziest Shepherd.

A century and more ago a pamphlet entitled "The Shepherds of Salisbury Plain" set forth their notorious laziness and said a gentleman offered a prize of a guinea to the laziest of a slumberous group. Some started up to claim the prize, which was won by the shepherd who merely murmured an invitation to shove it into his pocket.—London Globe.

START AGITATION IN NETHERLANDS TO ELECT RULER

Movement on Foot to Abandon Heirship Ascension to Throne.

The Hague, Netherlands, Nov. 29.—Only two lives, those of the reigning queen and her seven-year old daughter, Princess Juliona, bar the way in the natural order of things to the accession to the throne of the Netherlands of a German prince. It is true that, so far as health and age are concerned, these lives may be described as "first class," but the potential slenderness of the thread was illustrated not long ago in the Hague woods, where the royal automobile carrying Queen Wilhelmina and the little princess was the victim of a collision that might under less fortunate circumstances have cost the lives of both.

The question of the succession gave Dutchmen some concern before the war, and much more now. Several well known public men have drawn public attention to the matter in the last few days, and what looks like a strong agitation, enjoying widespread sympathy, has been started for a revision of the constitution declaring null and void all potential rights of succession of foreign princes, leaving the choice of a new sovereign, in such and unhoped-for and unexpected circumstance as the failure of all direct heirs to the throne, entirely to the states general or parliament of the country. For every Dutchman, practically without exception, whatever be his sympathies in the present war, would regard the accession of a German prince as a calamity, threatening the so dearly cherished independence of the nation.

In the House of Orange, Holland is blessed with a dynasty bound to Holland and Holland alone by such strong ties that no one at home or abroad would dream of suggesting that the council chambers of the crown are accessible to other than purely Dutch interests. But if that house were left without living issue, the next claimants to the throne would be found among the collateral princely houses of Saxe-Weimar and Reuss-Kostritz, followed or accompanied by those of Saxe-Mainingen, Hohenzollern, another branch of Reuss-Kostritz, Schleswig-Holstein, Norway, Sahcumburg-Lippe, Sweden and Wied—one and all equaly foreign to the Netherlands.

Profesor J. A. Van Hamel, a distinguished authority on law, declares in the Amsterdamer: "This game of interests with German royal relations on foreign thrones must teach us that small powers should beware if they do not desire to see, in their highest government circles, foreign aims that might be pernicious to them put in place of their national interests. Is the fact sufficiently reckoned, with that, according to the present constitutional regulation of the succession to the throne, the successive princes called to the throne after Princess Juliana and all of German families, mostly officers in the German army, naturally all attached heart and soul and bound to the German policy? Monarchical coupling of this country to another, by a prince who could hardly be anything but an imperial prince-envoy, and who might be admonished from abroad to bear himself like a good German, of whom, moreover, nothing is known here save that he has not the slightest relations with this country, would be a very serious matter for the coming times."

As regards the exact form that the proposed constitutional revision should take, Prof. D. P. D. Fabius, yet another writer on the subject, argues in favor of simply putting all possible claimants besides Princess Juliana out of court, of binding the country in no way to any house or person outside the offspring of Wilhelmina, and thus in case of the necessity occurring leaving the states general an unquestionably free voice in the matter. On the other hand, Professor H. Louis Israels, a well known publicist, wants to take a cue from the American constitution, which itself borrowed so much from Dutch political law, in its prescription that only a born American can be elected head of the state. He would have the rule laid down that only those who were born and remained Hollanders would by right of inheritance succeed to the throne of the Netherlands.

No sign has yet been made by the government as to whether they would contemplate taking up the matter at this juncture. Probably a good deal depends upon the view entertained by the royal palace.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION RECEIVES PERMISSION TO CHANGE ITS TITLE.

Because another club previously had been incorporated under the name of the Bower City Athletic association, the body, recently organized, which secured permission from the city commission several months ago to hold athletic exhibits in the city, yesterday petitioned the commission to have their resolution amended and to read, "The Southern Wisconsin Athletic association." A clause in the resolution which appeared to the commissioner as a rider was stricken out. This would give permission to any athletic association to hold similar contests and with the idea of regulating exhibits the council only gave permission to the Southern Wisconsin association.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years of age and go with a boy of eighteen. We have been going together for almost half a year. The other night when he came down he asked me for a kiss and of course I refused. He did it anyway, which made me very angry. I like this boy very much and hate to give him up. He said that if I wasn't willing to give in to him we would have to quit altogether. But he said he would hate to do it. He has told me many times that he likes me better than any other girl. He said that we have been going together long enough for me to to allow it, but I hate such things. Don't you think that if he cared very much for me he would stop those silly ideas? He has been down several times since. Is there anything I can do to break him of it? He stopped smoking just because I didn't like it.

WORRIED JANE.

If you would hate to give the boy up, don't let him kiss you. He would like it, of course, for a time, but after a while he would look about for another girl, who didn't seem quite so willing to gratify his wishes. You can make the boy stop if you want to, but it will take a deal of will power. Unless you exert will power, however, I am afraid you will suffer in the end by losing the boy. It isn't complimentary to have a boy say that all he will go with you for is your kisses.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty-one years old and I have had quite a bit of experience with boys. I have been in love twice and I have gone with several boys that I have not loved. The last man I loved was thirty. He tired of me and stopped coming to see me. My heart was broken for a time, but finally I got over it. Now I am going with a boy nineteen years old who loves me more than anyone I have ever gone with. I don't expect to marry him, because he is so young. I just want to know if you think it is wrong for me to go with him since he is not as old as I am. I care a great deal for him as a friend and I should hate to give him up, but his parents do not like me. What do you think I should do?

DOUBTFUL.

I think there is no harm in going with him as a friend. Of course his parents would worry a little about having a son, so young, in love. They are unwise to show their disapproval.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a freshman in high school and I have been chumming with a girl ever since we were in the fifth grade in grammar school. She lives two houses from me. Now she has started to go with a boy and she goes places with him instead of me. We used to go to the picture show and now she never asks me to go and when I ask her she says she has a date with that boy. Do you think it is right for a girl to give up her girl friends just because she has a chance to go with some boy?

GERTRUDE.

Girls should not give up their girl friends to go with boys. I think your chum should be more loyal to you and give a little of her time to you. Don't criticize her too harshly, though, because boys are very pleasing when you haven't gone with them before. Perhaps your friend will change after the novelty has worn off, and will have more time to spend with you.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a young man for eleven months and is it all right for me to allow him to kiss me before leaving?

(2) Should he insist upon going out with other girls?

(3) May I ask him to supper while my mother is out of town, if my sister is present?

(4) What time do you suggest that I ask him to leave when calling on me?

EXACTNESS.

(1) It is not all right to let a boy kiss you unless you are engaged to him.

(2) If he insists upon going out with other girls it means that he likes your friendship, but he has no serious intentions. He has a right to go with other girls since you are not engaged.

(3) If your sister is older than you are, yes.

(4) Ten-thirty.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Should one acknowledge a note of congratulation?

BILL.

It is courteous to acknowledge such a note, but it is not a serious breach of good form to omit the written reply.

Household Hints

MEATLESS DINNER.

This meatless dinner is good enough to be served once a week.

Soak one-half pound dried lima beans over night. In the morning drain, cover with cold water and boil slowly until tender. Add one can corn, one-half cup milk, lump of butter and salt to taste; let boil up once.

Serve with corn bread made as follows: One cup meal, one cup flour, one egg yolk, two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons shortening, two teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon salt, sweet milk to make soft batter.

For dessert: Take the white of egg and beat very stiff. Add a little sugar and tablespoon apple sauce free from lumps. Beat very stiff. Place slices of any stale cake on hand in saucers and pile high with apple mixture.

This dinner, accompanied by good coffee, is very appetizing; also economical and nourishing. Will serve four people generously.

For a change, use red kidney beans in place of lima beans, and prunes mashed in dessert in place of apple sauce.

THANKSGIVING CAKE AND DECORATIONS

Fruitcake Without Eggs or Sugar—One-half cup syrup, three-fourths cup shortening, one-half teaspoon each of ginger, cinnamon and allspice, one-half cup walnut meats, one and one-half cups flour, one-fourth cup grape juice, one-fourth cup milk, one cup raisins, one-fourth teaspoon cream tartar, one-fourth teaspoon soda. Bake one hour in moderate oven.

The following are two decorations for Thanksgiving cake:

Chocolate Turtles—Put a whole clove through a currant. Dip in chocolate fondant. Use a clove for tail and claws. Put in a circle with little white hearts between on top of cake.

Citron Holly Leaves—Cut citron in the shape of holly leaves with a stem of the same. Use little red candies for berries.

THE TABLE

Carrots—Mashed Carrots: Boil carrots in salted water to which a teaspoon of sugar has been added. When tender drain add a large lump of butter and mash.

Carrots cut lengthwise and fried in butter until a delicate brown are very good.

Scrape and cut carrots in rounds, slice a small onion. Boil in salted water until tender. Drain and keep warm while making the sauce as follows:

In a sauce pan put one tablespoon butter, let it melt, add one tablespoon flour and mix. Do not brown. Season with salt and pepper. Add one cup of vinegar and water (equal parts of each). Stir until it boils and is smooth. Then add one tablespoon sugar and a teaspoon of ground cinnamon. Pour over carrots and serve.

Cake for Breakfast or Dessert—Since eggs and butter have advanced so in price, probably this quick and good cake reciepe may help some: Butter, one tablespoon; sugar, one scant cup; one egg, milk, one cup; flour, two cups, with two full teaspoons baking powder; raisins or currants (half cup mixed in at the end). After this cake dough has been put in a buttered pan, mix together the following until crumby: butter, one teaspoon; sugar, two teaspoons; flour, two teaspoons; cinnamon, half teaspoon. Spread this on top of cake. Bake in moderate oven one-half hour.

Choice Holiday Cake that has been well tested for years. It can be bought only at the best bakeries and is very simple made at home if you may seem high in price, considering the cost of eggs, it's not expensive, as you get two small or one extra large cake that will serve a large company. It is best to weigh the ingredients. Sugar, one-half pound (or one cup); butter, one-half pound (or sixteen tablespoons); flour, one-half pound (or thirty-two tablespoons); eggs, seven; lemon extract, one tablespoon.

"The Bread Problem" is not a problem in the home where Shredded Wheat is known. The whole wheat grain is the real staff of life, and you have it in Shredded Wheat Biscuit, prepared in a digestible form. It contains more real, body-building material than meat or eggs, is more easily digested and costs much less. The food for the up-and-coming man who does things with hand or brain—for the kiddies that need a well-balanced food for study or play—for the housewife who must save herself from kitchen drudgery. Delicious for breakfast, or any meal, with milk or cream. Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

QUARRELING IN PUBLIC

The other evening, as we were walking down the street to attend a political meeting, a young couple passed me.

He was scowling, she was talking in a high-pitched voice. Just as they came opposite to us we heard her say sharply, "All right, then, why don't you go alone?"

There was nothing very bitter in the words, but the tone was packed with bitterness. One could feel all manner of accusations and recriminations and irritabilities behind it.

They Made Us Feel Unhappy, Too

We were in a holiday mood and across it, like a dark cloud across the shadow of the sun, passed the shadow of their irritability.

It is a very unhappy, unlovely thing for a married couple to be bitter with each other.

It is one shade more unlovely for them to show bitterness in public.

To be sure, even happily maried people must sometimes disagree. There would be something wrong with them, some lack of individuality if they thought alike on all subjects, but they can think differently without saying disagreeable things, or snapping each other up, or scolding or jawing or sulking or scowling.

They Must Come to Some Agreement

Of course many subjects on which they disagree involve action, and in these cases some kind of an agreement as a basis for action must be reached.

And, of course, there are times when either one feels strongly against some line of action pursued by the other. But such matters can be settled infinitely more happily and just as effectively without nagging or scolding. (You may think this is just words, but it isn't. If you hold it as an ideal and make some sacrifices for it, you will find out how much it can accomplish.)

And surely such matters can be settled with much more decency and dignity in private.

Nothing is more disagreeable than to be with a couple who allow themselves to quarrel in the presence of others. A friend of mine told me that she once went on a house-party where there was such a couple, and that, although every detail about the party was pleasant, these people spoiled the flavor of it.

They Spoiled the House-Party

"We all felt constrained and uncomfortable and ashamed (though they were the ones who ought to have been ashamed)," she said, "when they quarreled, which was every little while. And they kept appealing to the rest of us to side with them, and you know how pleasant that it."

Of course it does take a great deal of self-control not to show irritation when one feels it, sometimes. But remember this, self-control is the prime factor of real breeding. Though you follow every rule of etiquette and lack this control, you will surely be set down as ill-bred.

"Marge, what do you think of that?" Tom Gerard tossed a letter onto the table in front of his wife. "That will bring the color back to your face or I miss my guess," he continued as Marjory listlessly raised the envelope and drew out the letter. He stood looking over over her shoulder as she read:

"Dear Tom:

"I have the most exciting news. I received a letter this morning from a man in New York, a man I had never heard of before, who said that he was searching for descendants of John Cuthbert, through the younger son, as the direct line had died out in England. He asked me to tell him all I knew of my relatives, as I might be able to give him the clue he needed to prove that I was heir to the vast estates across the water.

"You can imagine that I was excited. I answered the letter at once, but I fear that nothing I could tell him will be of any use. The families have been utterly separated since my grandfather was cast off by his family for marrying a penniless American girl. However, something may come of it and in the meantime it is romantically exciting to think we may fall heir to an immense fortune. I mean to push the thing for all there is in it. Our family are good spenders and a fortune would come in pretty handy, so here's hoping.

"My love to Marjory.

"YOUR LOVING MOTHER."

"I do not understand," said Marjory, staring into her husband's face.

"You knew my mother's family were English, didn't you? About a hundred years ago a member of the family came to this country and married. We never have heard from any of the English relatives since I can remember. I did not even know that they were wealthy." Marjory sat looking into space with a bright spot burning in both her cheeks.

"Oh, Tom, wouldn't it be lovely?" she breathed.

"Perhaps it would have been better if mother had not spoken about it until it was settled. It would be such a disappointment if nothing came of it now that we have heard about it." Tom looked uneasily at his wife.

"You mother told you so you could help find out about the thing, I imagine. Can't you consult a good lawyer and learn what should be done in such a case?" asked Marjory excitedly.

"Don't you worry about my not doing things to get my nippers on this money if there is any to get." Tom was evidently walking on air as with shoulders erect and head thrown back he paced the room.

"Here, Tom," said Marjory, standing up in the line of march. "Stick this pin into me and see if I am awake." Tom looked into the shining eyes and thought he never had seen his wife look so beautiful. "This must be a dream, Tom. I am sure I shall wake up soon and hear you say, 'I'll put the tea kettle on. It is time to get up, Marge.'"

Tom laughed and kissed her and said, "Let's stay in dreamland forever then."

AMERICA'S FEMALE SHERIFF DESIRES HER JOB BACK.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Hackensack, N. J., Nov. 29.—Miss Constance Kopp, the demon undersheriff (ex) who, when in office was a four time winner on anything she undertook, is still a loser in her battle for her job.

Miss Kopp was fired when John W. Courter, Republican, slid into the sheriff's berth on the G. O. P. landslide in New Jersey November 7. He, take it from himself, couldn't find a thing for Miss Kopp, Democrat, to do and so bounced her. Miss Kopp, however, claims that the new civil service law, adopted just as the Republicans glided up to the flesh-pots, guarantees her her job.

She is still off the payroll, however, but has not given up the fight.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

SOME ORDINARY COLDS

Mrs. McGillicuddy had a cold. The neighbors ran in to advise her what to do about it. She tried a little of each treatment, not to offend friends. The "cold" settled in her throat and all over. She felt worse and worse with every change of treatment. She spent about four dollars out of her husband's sixteen dollar wage buying pretty boxes and nice smelling dope. Finally it dawned on her to see a doctor. She picked a good one, by chance. He took a culture.

Next morning a health department representative visited the McGillicuddy abode and announced that the place was quarantined for diphtheria. Mr. McGillicuddy kept right on at work—after a negative culture. But little Jack McGillicuddy, he kept right on at work without any culture at all. For Jack wasn't sick. He felt as fine as a boy can feel, spite of a one-sided cold in the head. But, pshaw, he had had that for two or three weeks back—he often had 'em when the weather was a little bad, you know.

One day, just for fun, the doctor took a culture from Jack's nose—the running side. The nose looked a little irritated, the discharge was yellow, purulent, and the lip was somewhat excoriated—which aroused the doctor's suspicions.

Diphtheria bacilli! Jack had 'em. He had been carrying them around all the while. Yes, he had taken them to school with him, and now it became apparent where some half dozen cases in Jack's room had picked up their infection—yes, and Jack's mother, too.

Now, let us not mix our morals. There are several to be drawn from the McGillicuddy case, but we want to point just one. It is this: Medical school inspection is a good thing on paper, but in practice it often proves a fiasco. There is medical inspection provided by law for Jack's school—sort of a half-hearted inspection, by underpaid young men. The people don't believe in doing the thing well. What is a school child's health, or the health of the community, compared with a one-tenth per cent increase in the tax rate? No, indeed, we can't afford to pay for adequate medical inspection. We'll make a loud noise like a doctor assuring the people there is no danger, and let it go at that. We'll arrange to have a medical inspector look them over hastily now and then. That's all we care to buy just now. We are educated, surely, but only moderately. Later on, perhaps, we'll know enough to do the thing up right, and save money for the people in the bargain. Little slips like Jack McGillicuddy's case should be hushed up—it hurts the school system to make a hue and cry over trifling errors.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Information That Can Be Mailed.

Send me by return mail complete directions for the treatment of a case of asthma. (J. R. H.)

Answer—I shall be glad to answer any particular question you may care to ask about asthma, but it is outside the province of this department to prescribe treatment. To do so safely is impossible. You enclose a loose stamp but omit the addressed, stamped envelope. This last requirement is a necessary one to facilitate handling mail.

Nature of Epilepsy.

Can you tell me whether a germ or organism has been discovered that causes epileptic fits? (W. H. W.)

Answer—The Bacillus epilepticus, found by Dr. C. A. L. Reed and others in the blood and intestinal tract, is believed to be the cause of the seizures in some such cases.

Cod Liver Oil.

What is your opinion of ——— ———'s medicine for coughs and colds and as a tonic? (R. A.)

Answer—That is an emulsion containing about 333 per cent of cod liver oil, and as such it is quite worthless; more expensive than butter, milk, etc.

Apple and Onion Salad—Peel and slice apples, sprinkle over them a very little sugar. Slice onions and let stand in cold water (about two onions to six apples). When ready to serve, mince onion very fine, stir in with apple, serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

SUMMER TIME.

Again of the good summer time we can sing, of flowers in bloom and of birds on the wing, of robins and swallows and martins and jays, that are back on the job to bring joy to our days; are back to build homes in the trees and the brush, along with the oriole, bluebird and thrush, to gladden old earth, make it merry and gay, no chance for the gloom in our midst while they stay. From dawn's early light 'till the close of the day, all nature resounds with their beautiful lay, and when they at night draw their chirp to a close, and we go to bed for much needed repose, for having been up with the larks in the morn, and having worked hard we are tattered and worn, and long for some sleep, but instead there's a hunch, a long billed mosquito is out for a lunch, he circles around, we expect him to light, he does, then another blows into the night. And right near our home is a pondfull of frogs, that croak and that warble from millions of bogs; we all like the birds, like to coax them around, mosquitoes we shoo and we swat when they're found — but peace and good will takes a hike for the shade, when bullfrogs cut in with their night serenade.

EXPERIMENT IN REVIVAL OF OLD AMERICAN PLAYS.

New York, Nov. 29.—To find out whether there is a native American tradition in drama from which plays of genuine American fibre may be written the Drama League of America, in December, is to give a revival of some of the old time thrillers. The program includes parts from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Davy Crock; or," "Shores Acres," "The Contrast," "The Girls With the Green Eyes," and "Andre." When Edgar Allen Poe was dramatic critic of the Broadway Journal he saw "Andre" forty times and even then had not entirely made up his mind that it was a genuinely good play.

Only portions of the plays will be produced, the best from each and in such order that in an afternoons sitting a spectator will see the progress of American drama from its pre-Civil war stage of "development" to that reached just before the present.

From between the lips that had parted to utter the curse there gushed a scarlet stream.

Hardy laid the body on the ground and drew the distracted girl away by main force.

"Come into the house," he ordered. "You must not look at him."

She offered only passive resistance. When he had put her in a chair, she sat motionless, as if dazed, her dry eyes fixed on vacancy.

"This won't do," he said. "You must go to your grandfather. I cannot take you with me, and besides—"

He checked himself, caught up a blanket, and went outdoors. When presently he returned, she had not moved. He fastened her scant wardrobe and few trinkets in a blanket roll, and led her out around the house, carefully keeping himself between her and the blanket-covered form on the ground near the door. He had brought her own and her brother's ponies to the back of the house. He lashed the bundle on the dead man's saddle, lifted the girl upon her pony, and mounted his mare.

Half-way to the agency they met Tiowa-konza coming down with several members of his family to visit his half-breed grandchildren. Urged by Hardy, the girl broke her distraught silence to tell the old chief what had happened. Before she had finished she was weeping in the arms of her grandfather.

Notwithstanding the delay, Hardy again permitted the mare to choose her own pace. Though she went at a steady trot, a messenger in the remaining automobile easily could have overtaken him at any time before dark. But no messenger was sent.

Midafternoon Hardy met the car that had taken his baggage to town. It was piled high with the baggage of the new agent and the commissioners. The chauffeur, with the indifference of a city man, whirled past him without so much as slackening speed.

CHAPTER XX.

The Registration.

At noon the following day the commissioners came out to the butte, and announced the conditions of the land opening. All entrymen were to start from the coulee at a given signal, to be made at ten o'clock in the morning of the second day following. Any person who started before the signal would be disqualified.

A tent was set up for the commissioners in the coulee bottom, on the reservation side of the dwindled stream, and the chairman and secretary proceeded to take the signatures, thumb prints and descriptions of the waiting colony of prospectors and cowboys.

Since Hardy and Marie had first come upon the camp, the number of men had twice doubled. Yet, owing to the obscure manner in which the proposed opening had been advertised, there were absurdly few of them, all told, compared to the multitudes at other governmental land openings. Perhaps with a view toward covering this discrepancy, the commissioners had ordered full descriptions of every contestant, and so managed to cover many sheets of paper and to consume much time.

The recording was well under way when Vandervyn and Dupont came down to the camp. Neither made any attempt to push into the line of entrymen. But Dupont read the posted notice of the conditions of the contest, frowned, and remarked to Vandervyn that he wished to show him something over at the butte. The young man looked bored, yet borrowed a pony, and rode across with him to the deserted camp.

"What is it?" he asked. "Have you found a mare's nest that is hatching out a horse good enough to outrun triplets?"

Dupont shook his head. "Don't you let nobody hear that joke around here, Mr. Van. Them there prospectors and punchers all tug guns, and they ain't the kind to stand for no funny business."

"They'll have to stand for it, if they don't understand it," punned Vandervyn. "In this game three of a kind beat all the jacks in the pack."

"You best keep your head shut, just the same. Them punchers 'll ride the hardest, and they're mighty sharp to see the diff'rence between horses."

"I told you I shall rush them off their feet. They'll think me a fool, and drop behind, to overhaul me later. Now, if that's all you have to tell me—"

He wheeled his borrowed pony to ride back.

"Hold on!" replied Dupont, frowning uneasily. "I want to talk over fixing up about the way we share the mine."

Vandervyn lifted his eyebrows. "Aren't you satisfied? Now that Redbear is—out of the way, there will be none to question our sharing of the mine between us."

"It's between us, all right," sullenly replied Dupont. "Tain't in writing, though. According to them conditions, if I don't register today, I don't git no right to enter no claim. What's to keep you from turning round and telling me to whistle for my half, soon's you git title to the mine?"

"Why, Jake!" exclaimed Vandervyn in an aggrieved tone. "How can you think I could throw you down that way? Even if we weren't friends, you know I want Marie."

Dupont [illegible] and his jaw set obstinately. "That's all right; but them that want to remain friends want to remember that business is business."

Vandervyn frowned, considered the matter a few moments, smiled, and drew a folded paper from an inner pocket.

"Very well. I expected to wait until I reached the mine. But since you insist, here it is—my deed to you of a full half-interest. You've been hinting and looking so confounded uneasy ever since the—accident to Redbear, that I thought I'd be ready for you."

Mumbling an apology, Dupont hastily unfolded the deed, skimmed through it, and grasped the fact that it purported to convey to him a full half-interest in the mine. He had started to read it over more carefully when an oath from Vandervyn caused him to look up.

"The Devil! What Brings Him Back Here?"

The younger man pointed along the coulee bank to where the road topped the spur ridge of the butte.

"The devil!" he exclaimed. "What brings him back here?"

"Cap! It sure is Cap!" muttered Dupont. "Nom d'un chien! You don't think he's got on to the game, do you?"

"Wouldn't do him any good if he had."

"Then why d'you think he's—"

"To enter the contest!" divined Vandervyn. "There's time enough to wire Washington and have him put under arrest for disobeying orders."

"Hold on!" cautioned Dupont. "What if he does try his luck? In the mountains there ain't no horse nor mare neither can break up your pinto combine."

Vandervyn's face cleared. "You ought to know. I'll chance it if—"

"Ain't no chance to it," put in Dupont. "It's a dead cinch."

"He'll think he's going to do me," exulted Vandervyn. "Let him register. He's come back for the mine first; then Marie. I don't want her to see him or to know he has come back. You have your deed. Suppose you start at once."

"If she's willing. I'll see," qualified Dupont. "Look out you don't slip up. I'll tend to my end. So long—good luck!"

He rode off down the butte side of the coulee.

Vandervyn cantered straight across, and met Hardy a few yards below the tent of the commissioners.

"Good day, captain," he spoke in civil greeting. "I am surprised to see you back here. Have your orders been countermanded?"

"No," replied Hardy with equal civility. "I have resigned."

Vandervyn could not conceal his blank astonishment. "Not—not resigned from the army?"

"Yes. I telegraphed the war department, received an answer, and mailed my resignation and application for leave of absence to my commanding officer at Vancouver barracks. As an officer it was not proper for me to enter the contest."

"Ah!" Vandervyn's smile gave place to a look of pained surprise. "So you intend to enter the contest. But do you think that quite honorable, captain, in the circumstances?"

"I do not care to discuss questions of honor with you, Mr. Vandervyn," replied Hardy with utmost coolness.

"That I can well understand," countered Vandervyn. "Knowing that we can make no protest, you intend personally to take advantage of the information that you pledged yourself to keep secret."

Hardy dismounted without replying, and placed himself at the end of the line of registering entrymen. The sun was far down in the sky when he came before the secretary's table, at the end of the line. Vandervyn rose from his easy seat to take a position behind him. The secretary hesitated and looked inquiringly at Vandervyn. He met with a nod to proceed.

"You wish to register?" came the curt question of the chairman.

"Yes," replied Hardy with equal curtness.

"Is an army officer entitled to enter the contest?" questioned the smallest commissioner.

"You need not debate the matter," said Hardy. "I have resigned my commission."

Again Vandervyn nodded, and there were no further objections raised. Hardy and he signed the register, and made their thumb prints, and were duly described in writing by the secretary.

Hardy at once mounted his mare, and rode away up the coulee. He did not return until Vandervyn and the commissioners had left for the agency.

That evening he drew up the legal notices required in the posting of a mining claim, and paid three or four of the older prospectors to check them for errors. To all who inquired, he described the trail by which he had gone into the mountains, and frankly stated that he knew of none other that led to the nearest of the four prominent peaks which had been named as the corners of the mineral-land boundary.

The rest of the evening and most of the following day he spent in grooming his mare. He gave her no grass and little water, but a good allowance of oats. Both morning and afternoon he took her out for short rides up the coulee, and each time repeatedly climbed and descended the bank. He did not cross over to the reservation side, much less go to the agency.

The day set for the opening dawned still and clear, with the promise of burning heat by noon.

After breakfast the more uneasy spirits began wandering about the camp or fidgeting with their packs. Nearly all the older and more experienced men gave their ponies a feed of oats, and stretched out to lounge in the shade of their tents.

Two hours before the time set for the start Vandervyn appeared, and crossed over to the camp. He was riding his pinto and leading a pack pony. When the old prospectors saw his heavy pick and shovel and large, poorly lashed pack of food and bedding, they cracked many dry jokes on the grand chances of the tenderfoot. Their own picks and shovels were as light as such tools could be made without impairing their efficiency, and their packs were as lean as Vandervyn's pack was swollen.

IT is easier to complete a telephone connection than to report a line busy.

When the operator, whose duty it is to complete the connection, tests the line and finds it busy, an electrical device called the Busy signal notifies the calling subscriber that the line is engaged.

Many business establishments fail to provide enough equipment to handle their calls. This results in customers getting the busy signal frequently.

If in doubt as to the adequacy of your telephone facilities, consult our Commercial Department.

Like Clock-Work!

(By N. E. Cook, M. D.)

The machinery of the body needs to be oiled, kept in good condition just as the automobile or bicycle. Why should the human neglect his own machinery more than that of his horse or his engine? Yet most people do neglect themselves. Their tongue has a dark brown color, skin sallow, breath bad, yet they fail to see that their machinery needs attention. Everybody should take a mild laxative at least once a week. A pleasant way to clear the tongue and the highly colored water noticed in the morning is to take a laxative which will cure the inactive liver and biliousness.

A pleasant vegetable pill is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloes, and jalap, made into a tiny pellet and coated with sugar. First put up by Dr. Pierce nearly 50 years ago. Druggists sell these vegetable pellets in vials for 25c. Ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The Dr. R. V. Pierce stamp is on them.

NEWS FROM SUPERIOR.

Superior, Wis.—"One bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription put me on my feet after being bedfast for a whole year, and the second bottle completely cured me. I had had an operation for tumor and my strength would not come back. The doctors seemed powerless to help me. I heard of a lady who had been in as bad a condition as mine and Dr. Pierce's medicine cured her, so I tried it, with the very best of results, and I have been in the best of health ever since. I cannot say enough in praise of 'Favorite Prescription' for women."—Mrs. L. R. Carman, 1721 Twenty-second Street.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is put up in both liquid and tablets. For sale by all druggists.

HIDDEN PUZZLE

MY BUSY DAY.

REBUS.

Dream Life.

I called aloud in the forest, and the shout came back. Then I searched long, to find who answered me—but the sound had no source. I followed the will-o'-the-wisp through swamps at evening. It led me hither and yon, but I came nowhere. It was only the ghost of a light. I saw an apple hanging in the depths of a pool. I stooped to pick it, and layed my hands in the water. The apple had no form. This is dream life.—The Atlantic.

Dinner Stories

Jack, who was a sailor, had one day been painting some railings, and had put under it, "Whet Paynte."

A friend of his coming along, and knowing that Jack was by no means a good scholar, thought to take the rise out of him, and said:

"You don't spell it that way, Jack."

But Jack answered him thus: "Well, shure, don't I know it; only, you see, if I spelt it right nobody would notice it."

A young woman who thought she was losing her husband's affection went to a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter for a love-powder. The mystery woman told her:

"Get a raw piece of beef, cut flat, about an inch thick. Slice an onion in two, and rub the meat on both sides with it. Put on pepper and salt and toast it on each side over a red coal fire. Drop on it three lumps of butter, and two sprigs of parsley, and get him to eat it."

The young wife did so, and her husband loved her ever after.

Among the many excellent stories which Leslie Ward, the famous cartoonist, "Spy," tells in his reminiscences are one or two concerning the absent-mindedness of Lord Crewe's father, the poet-peer, better known as Monckton-Milnes.

"I remember," says "Spy," the eccentric lord coming into the club one evening looking tired and hungry. On the mantlepiece a white paper gleamed. It was a list of the Derby lottery. Something stirred in his mind, which was far away on other subjects bent, and reminded him that he was hungry. He scanned the lottery list and at last he was heard to murmur in dissatisfied tones: 'Waiter, I dont see anything to eat here.'"

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

NORWEGIANS WORK BIG COAL FIELDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Christiania, Norway, Nov. 29.—The Norwegian Coal Company which brought the American coal fields on Spitzbergen has now completed the preparatory work for getting the mining started and this year will have mined more than 50,000 tons—19,000 tons of which already have been exported to Norway in the time from August 15 to October 1. It is the aim of the company in 1920 to have a yearly production of 400,000 tons. Favorable weather for the four months from June to September will allow an average of one hundred days for the shipping of the coal—and there is no difficulty in keeping the mines going the year around.

There are now under construction at Advent Bay, great piers with the most modern loading machines so as to permit the loading of 4,000 tons a day. Later similar facilities will be provided at Green Harbor.

It is claimed the quality of this coal is superior to the best English coal—and the Norwegian industry, navy and mercantile marine will take all they can get.

POLICE CHIEF, SLEUTH, QUITS JOB BECAUSE OF COUNCIL REPRIMAND.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Watertown, Wis., Nov. 29.—Because the city council ruled he would have to confine his sleuthing activities to Watertown, Chief of Police Herman C. Block, has resigned his job.

In recent years Chief Block has captured many criminals, but not all were for crimes committed in Watertown. They were parties responsible for crimes committed in other cities.

Block figured it was too dull to confine his work to Watertown where a violation of the law is said to be an unusual thing, so he quit.

THE TRUTH—and the PROOF

"WORDS AND PROMISES ARE ONLY GOOD WHEN BACKED UP BY DEEDS."

This axiom is just as true today as it was when Socrates uttered it hundreds of years ago.

And I attribute my success as a specialist principally to the fact that I never attempt to treat cases that are incurable, and second that I back up my claims by absolute proof.

HERE IS THE PROOF

They Say I Cure. Do You Believe Them?

WRITE TO THEM AND SATISFY YOURSELF. Such Proof can not be manufactured or imitated.

CURED OF APPENDICITIS.

Black Creek, Wis., 2-17-13.

Dear Doctor:—
It is with pleasure that I write you to say that after treating with you I am completely cured of Chronic Appendicitis and Gall Stones.——Other doctors wanted to operate.—I weigh 19 lbs. more than I did when I started treatment.——I was sent to you by a lady you cured of Gall Stones two years ago, ——You may refer to me at any time.

MISS MARTHA SCHINKE,

CURED OF RUPTURE.

Beaver Dam, Wis., Nov. 23, '15.

J. W. Post,
Milwaukee, Wis.

Dear Sir:—
Answering your letter of the 20th I am pleased to say that Dr. N. A. Goddard's treatments have been entirely satisfactory. I consider myself cured of my rupture and before taking treatment I made careful investigation of previous cases where he claimed to have had good results. I have never worn a truss since and have no bad effects or annoyance.

Very truly yours,
C. A. STARKWEATHER,
Beaver Dam, Wis.

TOLD HE HAD CONSUMPTION.

Read This Letter.

Chilton, Wis., Aug. 1, 1915.

Dr. Goddard,

Dear Doctor:—
In September, 1912, I consulted you at Appleton, Wisconsin. At that time I weighed about 160 pounds and was suffering from shortness of breath and general breakdown of health. I had been told by a physician that I had consumption and I doctored with him without getting any better. As soon as I began treatment with you, I began to feel better; my breathing got all right and I began right away to gain in weight and strength. I have done a full day's work every day this summer and am now in perfect health, and weigh 180 pounds, which is more than I ever weighed in my life. I am certainly glad that I came to you and feel that I am owing my good health to your skill in knowing how to treat me. You may refer to me at any time, anyone desiring proof of your ability.

Yours truly,
OTTO MAILE,

JUAREZ RACE TRACK BACKED BY U. S. MEN TO OPEN THURSDAY

Great Mexican Course, Despite Revolutions on All Sides, Starts With Great Program.

Juarez, Mexico, Nov. 29.—There is at least one American institution which in spits of bandits, de facto governments and disputes regarding the status of Gen. Pershing's punitive force, will flourish the same as usual in Mexico this winter. Beginning with tomorrow, the Juarez Jockey club, backed by American capital, will open its annual 100 or more days of racing.

To place the sport of horse racing on a more firm footing and to eliminate the danger of a bad reputation through the wrong sort of gambling on the races, books will be replaced at this meeting by pari-mutual machines. Race track followers believe "iron men" are the best bookmakers to be obtained and expect the machines to do much toward boosting the Juarez stock.

Juarez, the quaint old city across the Rio Grande from El Paso, has changed governments many times since the track was opened but every year has found the jocky club pursuing its business, regardless of machine guns, rifles and cannons. The city has been held at different times by Porfirio Diaz, Francisco Madero, Victoriano Huerta Francisco Villa and Venustiano Carranza, but none of them threatened to put a stop to the racing, although plants in other sections of the republic have been shut down.

Harry F. Breivegel, assistant manager of the track, has arrived here from Laurel, Md., where Maryland racing recently held forth, and is expecting the most successful meet in the history of Juarez racing.

Col. M. J. Winn, manager of the track, anticipates a big boom at the local course since it has been determined to put in pari-mutuels instead of the bookmakers. He believes it was these machines which saved the sport in Kentucky and expects them to do the same here.

More than 200 horses have already been shipped here from the northern tracks. Juarez is said to have lost money at its last winter meeting, but this is not preventing horsemen from shipping their steeds here for this winter's affair.

BROWN LAYS CLAIM TO TITLE OF EAST

Brown has a football eleven of first rank, if not top rank. That defeat of Harvard by a score of 21 to 0 following the defeat of Yale the week before by a score of 21 to 6 answers definitely any question that could be asked. It matters not if Yale was caught slightly unprepared on account of minor injuries. Tad Jones says he put the strongest possible team on the field. It matters not that Harvard played a number of second string men. Bob Fisher, the Crimson line coach, has said: "There is little to choose between the regulars and first string substitutes. In fact, in the games played the substitutes have acquitted themselves fully as well as the regulars."

No allbis need be framed. Let credit be given where credit is due. Ed Robinson and his assistants, Buck Wittimore and Earl Sprackling, have built up a mighty strong team for Brown, with that dusky wonder, Pollard, its strongest asset. If Colgate is beaten on Thanksgiving day, Brown's place at the top among the eastern elevens is fixed.

WISCONSIN PLAYERS TO RECEIVE LETTERS

"W's" Will Be Awarded at Meeting of Athletic Board Tonight.—Freshman Players Get Numerals.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 29.—It is highly probable that twenty-four 'varsity football players will be awarded "W's" at tonight's meeting of the athletic board. This will be four more than have been so honored at the end of any season for years at the university.

At the same time the athletic board ratifies Coach Withington's recommendations in regard to the 'varsity men, they will take action on Coach Tom Jones' freshman squad, the men from whom next year's 'varsity eleven will be selected. It is expected that about twenty-one freshmen will be awarded their class numerals.

Here are the men who will probably be awarded freshmen numerals tonight, and something about their work:

Allen Davy, 145 pounds, Aurora, Ill., all-state Illinois quarter in 1915.

Herbert W. Dettmen, 189 pounds, Richland Center, Wis., fullback or center; a powerful player.

Gustave R. Jacobi, 165 pounds, Grand Forks, N. D. Fullback. A smashing back, who runs with high knee action. Will make a good end.

Clinton G. Langum, 165 pounds, Eau Claire, Wis. Fullback or halfback. A shifty runner of the type of Bart Macomber.

Alvah C. Elliott, 170 pounds, Muscoda, Wis. Fullback. A hard running back who is good on defensive play.

Allen Spafford, 160 pounds, Morrison, Ill. A fast, shifty halfback, who played on the Culver Military Academy team before coming to Wisconsin.

Robert L. Wiley, 165 pounds, Cameron, Wis. Quarterback. Played on Lawrence College team in 1914, and gave one of the greatest exhibitions ever seen at Camp Randall in the opening game against Wisconsin that year. Can forward pass a ball fifty yards and is a good open field runner.

Clyde W. Reading, 160 pounds, Oak Park, Ill. Halfback. A good man in the interference.

Cyrus J. Catton, 155 pounds, Bozeman, Mont. Quarter or halfback. The fastest man on the freshman squad. Is good track man.

Frank L. Weston, 165 pounds, Mason City, Ia. End; fast man; good on defensive play and an excellent forward pass catcher.

Raymond E. Donahue, 170 pounds, Tipton, Ia. End; a sure tackler.

James F. Mungavin, 170 pounds, Superior, Wis. End; particularly good on defense. The best tackler on the yearling squad.

Richard W. Steel, 140 pounds, Oak Park, Ill. Lightest man on the squad, but a good tackler and defensive player.

John R. Taylor, 175 pounds, Bozeman, Mont. Tackle; an aggressive, heady lineman, who has played on the Montana Agricultural eleven.

Francis H. Thompson, 175 pounds, Edgerton, Wis. An aggressive player. Very good at cutting through an opposing team's defense.

Lyle R. Chase, 185 pounds, Ashton, S. D. Guard. The strongest man on the squad.

Paul Van Gent, 175 pounds, Fish Creek, Wis. Guard. Brother of Gene Van Gent, Wisconsin's greatest basketball player. An aggressive football and basketball player, although not as strong as his brother.

Rudolph Hanson, 190 pounds, Superior, Wis. Guard; a man who is almost certain to make the 1917 'varsity team. Played one year on the Superior Normal eleven.

Grant A. Flamme, 165 pounds, Richland Center, Wis. Tackle.

Wallace A. Barr, 168 pounds, Milwaukee. Backfield man, who was injured early in the fall and was shelved for the season. Has a good chance to make the 'varsity.

Ralph Scott, 190 pounds, Hardon, Mont. According to Coach Jones this man will make the all-western before he leaves school.

At tonight's meeting awards to the cross country team will also be made. It is understood Captain Arlie Schardt, Milwaukee, and Harry Marshall of Chicago will be awarded "W's" and the remainder of the team "W. A. A.'s."

Marshall's "W" will be one awarded managers in all branches of athletics.

MORRIS MILLER

Mordecai Brown, Cub pitcher and a duck hunter of more than local reputation, recently related how he and Overall went on a trip to a small California lake about forty miles from Visalia—Overall's home. "We were in a blind for half an hour, and, will you believe it, we shot exactly ninety-seven ducks," he said. "It's a cinch to drop them," he continued. "Just shoot a little ahead of them, and they're such suckers they fly right into the shot." "Suppose the ducks got wise to this and flew back when you shot at them?" asked Charley Williams, secretary of the Cubs. "Suppose you fired behind them, then—what do you suppose they'd do?" "Duck," replied Brown. "That's where they get their name."

* * *

Rollo Zeider, Cub third sacker, tells of a hunting trip he had with Jay F. Pitts, the physician of the Chicago Nationals. Down near Auburn, Ind., Zeider does his shooting. He is considered quite a shot. This point must be borne in mind as you read. Dr. Pitts took Zeider to a celebrated hunting grounds in Illinois last fall. Three ducks rose and Pitts got all three before Rollo could put his gun to his shoulder. Not once during the afternoon did Zeider kill a bird, while the doctor accumulated a big bag. "Talk about shooting," said Rollo later. "I'm a mere novice. The doc shoots from the hip just like the cowboys used to with their revolvers. And he gets them, too."

* * *

Old Sam Langford, the Boston "Tar Baby," recently challenged Willard in spite of the fact that the champion drew the color line right after his scrap with Jack Johnson in Cuba. A Langford-Willard battle is out of the question, but it is probable that Langford could whip all of the other white heavies if they would agree to meet him. The "Tar Baby" is well along in years and is hog fat, but he still can hit and he also knows how to box with skill. Inasmuch as the boxing commission recently abrogated the mixed bout rule in New York state, perhaps some of the white heavyweights who frequently hurl challenges at Willard will jump at a chance to prove their worth by getting into the ring with the Boston colored man.

* * *

"The International league would welcome a players' strike," said President Ed Barrows on his return from the New Orleans meeting. "If our players struck we would have a splendid opportunity to bring our salaries down to an equitable basis Admitting that our salaries are lower than they were before the Federal league came into the field, they still are considerably higher than our business can afford. What must be brought home to our players is that if minor league conditions are to go back to where they were must go back to the salaries of that era. A threat of a strike is the last thing that would worry us.

* * *

Manager Griffith is being congratulated by many of the members of his team for having decided to train in Augusta next spring instead of Charlottesville. The players are tickled with the change, for it will mean they will be able to get in better condition. Walter Johnson is particularly pleased.

* * *

Most of the baseball umpires spend the winter months in small towns. Good judgment. What with so many street cars and automobiles a big city isn't really safe for a chap with poor eyesight.

* * *

Baseball players, at least those who strive hard, and who have been fearing that their salaries would be reduced, will find a lot of comfort in the news that comes from Cleveland that Outfielder Elmer Smith of the Washington team has been given a contract calling for more money than he got in 1916. Smith was so surdocument. Manager Smith appreciated that Smith was worth more than he was getting from Cleveland, and in order to encourage him and make him feel that he was appreciated he was given a raise.

THANK AMERICAN CONSUL FOR WAR AID

Great German Strategy Won Way Into Rumania

Hermannstadt, Transylvania, Nov. 29.—One of the battles of the present war which future generations will study is the one which led to the complete rout and disorganization of the First Rumanian army southwest of this city. For several reasons the battle in question is by far the most interesting of the European war. It caused the retreat of the Rumanian forces which had invaded Transylvania, and called for a flank maneuver whose success was possible only with an enemy who took too much for granted.

When Gen. Falkenhayn's forces reached the country north of Hermannstadt the general military situation was not favorable for the Central Powers' troops. The invading Rumanian troops had occupied good positions and had the advantage of numerical superiority. Kronstadt and the country north of that city had been occupied. The entire valley of the Alt was in the hands of the Rumanians, and the Germans and Austro-Hungarian troops depended for transportation upon a few single-tracked railroads of little strategic value.

Gradually contact was established with the enemy by advancing the Central forces' right wing. The Vulcan pass was taken. This done, the Teutonic army pressed slowly forward along the Transylvanian Alps, driving the Rumanians before them. The intention of the Rumanian general staff to push as far west as the Theiss river was wrecked.

Hermannstadt had not been occupied by the Rumanians, a failure due to lack of initiative. The city could have been taken without much fighting, but already the Rumanians had been given several good examples of Falkenhayn's strategy. The Rumanians lay south of the city in a half circle, refrained from offensive maneuvers, and so gave Falkenhayn the very opportunity he needed to set his great drive in motion. Slowly the Imperial troops were advanced towards the hills north of the Alt, while against the Ghost Forest in the east Central cavalry was thrown to protect the left flank.

This was the situation on September 23.

The Rumanians had the Red Tower pass in their rear, and a frontal attack might do more than throw them upon this. It was necessary to close the pass. This could be done only by sending troops through the mountains west of the pass, a very difficult maneuver since the mountains have no roads of any sort. Artillery and a supply train were out of the question.

Gen. Falkenhayn decided to attempt the flank movement with some German alpine troops, of which Bavarian mountaineers were but a small contingent, many of the "alpine" soldiers being in reality natives of Mecklenburg, men who in all their lives had never climbed a mountain.

Three battalions set out. The men carried food for four days and their regular issue of ammunition. Reserve supplies were carried on a hastily organized pack train. Through the foothills of the mountains a road could be used, then paths were followed, and finally the crests near the Rumania nborder had to be gained through dense forests and across boulder fields.

An odd feature of the maneuver was that the contact established with the Rumanian border guards did not result in the commander of the First Rumanian army taking some precautionary measure for the protection of his flank. The German flankers had daily skirmishes with the Rumanian border troops, but never met serious opposition.

The flanking force was to reach the Red Tower pass on Sept. 26 which day a frontal attack was to be made from the direction of Hermannstadt. Despite great hardships and the abandonment at the village of Dus of the pack train, the Germans succeeded in reaching the heights above the Alt defile on the morning of the 26th. Some engineers descended into the gorge and blew up the road at two points where revetments made this feasible. Even then the Rumanians seem to have felt absolutely secure. The fact that in their rear an enemy was destroying their one direct line of communication does not seem to have troubled them much. Probably the thought that the road through the Alt valley and to Kronstadt was open may be responsible for this.

The original program had called for a general attack at 7 in the morning on the 26th. The flanking troops were in telephonic communication with headquarters and so learned that the attack from Hermannstadt had been postponed. The situation of the alpine troops was far from reassuring. A movement on their own flank might be undertaken by the Rumanians at any hour. The 26th passed. The flanking body had been divided into three columns, as the pass was approached. The one advancing close to the Rumanian border reached the pass close to Riul Vatului, the Rumanian border post. The central column neared the gorge three miles above, while the third body squeezed itself through between the Rumanians at Hermannstadt and the central range.

September 27 passed without the frontal attack occurring. It was learned, however, that the Rumanians were taking their artillery through the defile. On the following day the flanking bodies began to be pressed by the Rumanians. Reinforcements could not be brought into the mountains at short notice, so that the prospects seemed not the brightest.

On September 29 a strong artillery fire in the north announced that the frontal attack was being made. The alpine troops advanced to positions directly overlooking the road in the defile. Already the road was filled with the van of the retreating Rumanians. It was caught in the machine gun and rifle fire of the Germans at two points, one south, the other immediately north of the village of Veres Torony. The slaughter was terrific as the Associated Press correspondent is able to testify from a visit to the spot. In a few minutes the narrow road was filled with dead men and animals.

From Boicza the Rumanion retreat was pressing upon those on the road, who on their right had unscalable precipices upon which perched the enemy, and on their left another precipice and a deep river. Men, animals and wagons plunged through the road's guard rail into the surging torrent below, never to come to the surface again. Their bodies were still resting on the rock ledges and sand banks when the correspondent went over the ground.

At Veres Torony there is a stone bridge across a mountain stream emptying into the Alt from the west. A German machine gun platoon reached a height nearby and took the bridge under fire. Soon the space between the ramparts was filled with dead and wounded men and animals. Death reaped its fullest harvest here. Those who were not cut down by the hail of bullets plunged over the bridge into the water, where wounded men and animals formed a writhing mass.

The cry came "sauve qui peut." An entire army, or that part of it which had been driven into the gorge, melted of a sudden into a panicky, fleeing mob. Again the river claimed hundreds of victims, and those lucky enough to reach the other side fell under the machine gun fire of the Germans.

The pressure forcing the Rumanians into Red Tower pass was exerted by the frontal attack which Falkenhayn engineered from the north. Had it been possible to close the Alt valley east of Hermannstadt the entire First Rumanian army would have been annihilated. As it was this route was in part open, though to close it had been intended and had been the cause of the delay of the frontal attack.

With every stick abandoned the remainder of the First Army dispersed in the foothills of the Fogaras mountains, and later reached Kronstadt.

At Boicza the remnants of the Rumanian train were seen by the Associated Press correspondent. The Imperiuks had taken away whatever had value. Over a square mile of meadow land and fields the wreckage of the train spread. Imperial artillery had wrought havoc with the column. The fragments of thousands of army vehicles, farm wagons and carts told an awful tale of the surprise Falkenhayn had worked on the Rumanians. Out of the wreckage loomed high the kitchen wagon of the commander of the thirteenth Rumanian division. On the ground lay tons of Rumanian general staff maps showing Hungary as far as Budapest and Silesia. Bundles of Rumanian flags, intended to proclaim Rumanian sovereignty in the invaded districts were also in evidence, as was the stationery which Buchsrest had prepared in advance for the civil administration of the annexed territories. No dream was ever more rudely shattered.

With the Red Tower pass taken, the Imperial troops advanced east through the Alt valley and set out to clear the Ghost Forest of the Second Rumanian army, which was thrown upon Kronstadt. Fogaras was taken. The Rumanians were forced beyond Riul Vatului, or better the reinforcements brought into the pass from the south, were halted there by the Germans. Today the Rumanians hold in the Red Tower pass a line of positions having the Pleasa mountain as its main point of support.

VILLA AGAIN DISPLAYS HIS MILITARY GENIUS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Ciudad Juarez, Mex., Nov. 29.—Another instance of the uncanny military genius and trickery of Villa that has gained for him the name "the fox of the Sierras" is being told here today by refugees from the south.

On the night of his attack upon Chihuahua he utilized a bold trisk to enable his men to enter the city undetected. Learning through spies that thousands of reinforcements had arrived from Monterey and had been put upon guard duty, he evolved this strategem. When he arrived in the outskirts he sent forward small details of his own men with instructions to relieve the Carranzistas on outpost duty. They marched up gave the password and an officer informed the guard he had been detailed to relieve them. Deluded into the belief the newcomers were members of the garrison, the outposts marched away, leaving Villa's own men to "guard" the town.

It was Villa who first put into practice the idea of driving herds of cattle over ground believed to be planted with mines. Since it has been picked up by commanders in the European war. He also used herds of cattle as living barricades when attacking entrenched positions. His men would drive hundreds of cattle up before the trenches using them as cover.

BOOSTS MOTOR INVOICE; OFFER CARS AT PRICE; BALKS; QUITS HIS JOB.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Nov. 29.—A case of considerable interest to American exporting houses has cropped up here. A consignment of motor cars from an American factory arrived in Buenos Aires. The invoice price of the cars, sent to the agency in Buenos Aires, were, by the customs authorities, deemed exceedingly low. The minister of Finance was induced to believe that some fradulent intention underlay the invoice prices, which ranged $200 to $300 gold. He fixed the value of the cars, for the purpose of revenue, at from $340 to $645 gold. On behalf of his principals the local agent invited the authorities to take over the cars at the invoice prices. After much delay the minister has gone out of office without giving a decision on the point. The cars remain in store pending the decision of the new minister of finance.

Here's our recipe for your Thanksgiving dressing:

FOR the base of your Thanksgiving dressing, use a Hart Schaffner & Marx Varsity Fifty Five suit—one, two or three button or belted back to suit your taste; over this goes a Varsity Six Hundred Overcoat.

For seasoning add a smart silk and wool shirt and one of our new four-in-hands; garnish with a new hat—soft or derby.

We're ready with all the "necessaries"; prices and styles are right.

AN OPPORTUNITY

To invest in a well known Automobile factory, with a phenominal record, is offered to a few residents of Janesville.

New models now on exhibition have been proclaimed the "sensation of the 1917 season."

An overwhelming and unprecedented demand necessitates immediate additional capital for increased production.

Net profits on the current year's business are running at the rate of 40% on the total capitalization.

The issue is small and will no doubt be greatly oversubscribed.

We prefer to distribute it in small lots in as many localities, and as quickly, as possible.

Therefore, this announcement is appearing simultaneously in the smaller cities throughout the country.

Further particulars supplied upon request.

A lady on the hill was speaking to a railroad man concerning the business of the roads when she remarked, "There is considerable composition on the roads now, is there not?" Two ladies were speaking of the prevailing disease, when one of them said, "Yes, there is a good deal of diphtheria and pewter sore throat in the city. An inquisitive individual anxiously inquired how light was got into the middle of the Chicago tunnel, and a kind friend informed her it was pumped in by one of the unused water works pumps and she went away supremely happy.

Toppy Pokes His Nose Into Mr. Turkey's Business

As soon as Mr. Turkey heard the sound by the fence, he turned around in a hurry.

"Here's where they get me out," he thought, contentedly. But he was mistaken. It wasn't anyone to get him out at all. It was only Toppy Cottontail poking his nose in between the fence wires and asking what was up.

"Nothin's up," grumbled Mr. Turkey, he was too disappointed to be very polite you see, "I'm in."

"So I see," laughed Toppy, and somehow his easy good nature didn't please the imprisoned turkey one bit. "How did you get in?"

Mr. Turkey told him all about the excitement in the farmyard; how he had run hither and yon in his effort to get away from the farmer and how the other farmyard folk had made all the racket they could in an effort to frighten the farmer away—but all in vain. "But I'm not worrying," said Mr. Turkey, placidly, "they won't let me stay here long. I'm the finest turkey in the flock. They'll get me out."

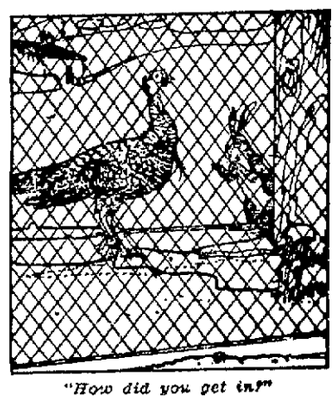

"That so?" said Toppy, with a funny little wiggle of his nose. And, somehow, the way Toppy said "that so," and the funny way he wiggled his nose, didn't make Mr. Turkey feel any better. It seemed almost as though Toppy had said, "Do you really believe that?" Mr. Turkey began to feel very queer and more than a little panicky.

"You think they will, don't you?" he asked, hurriedly.

Toppy thought a minute. "It isn't what I think—it's what they do, that's going to matter," he said, finally. "Hadn't you better be trying to get yourself out?"

But Mr. Turkey's tottering faith in his friends (faith that sometimes is a good thing and sometimes isn't) was coming back good and strong.

"Oh, no," he replied, confidently, "I'll be all right, never fear. Nobody would let me be killed; nobody would even let me stay for long in this pen."

"How did you get in?"

"No-o-o," admitted Toppy, doubtfully, "maybe they wouldn't. But all the same it wouldn't do any harm for you to be planning a way out for yourself."

"Why bother?" replied Mr. Turkey, grandly. "If you think my farmyard friends will fail me, maybe you will get me out?"

That flattered Toppy (just as Mr. Turkey had felt sure it would) and he felt very wise and important. "Maybe I will," he said, "I'll go back to my home and see if I can't think of some way for you to get out." And off he put, ipity, ipity, op; ipity, ipity, op; toward his home the other side of the cornfield.

Mannheim, Famous German City, Is Laid Out Geometrically

Washington, D. C., Nov 28.—"Mannheim, the great commercial city of the Upper Rhine valley which French aviators are reported to have raided recently, is famous as the 'chessboard municipality of Germany' because of the precision with which it is laid out in 136 squares of equal size," says a war geography bulletin which the National Geographic society issues from Washington.

"With a population of 200,000 of its own and 90,000 in the town of Ludwigshafen just across the river, Mannheim is not only the chief emporium for all South Germany, handling vast quantities of coal, petroleum, cereals, tobacco, sugar, coffee, and timber, but it is also a great manufacturing center with chemical works, electric machinery plants, iron foundries, and automobile factories. At the head of important navigation of the Rhine, it is not only the leading city of the upper river, but is surpassed by Cologne alone on the Lower Rhine.

"The rapid growth of the shipping interests of the city necessitated a vast expansion of the harbor during the last quarter of a century. The new docks, quays and warehouses, constructed at the mouth of the Neckar, which enters the Rhine at this point, cover nearly 250 acres.

"The most striking building in Mannheim is the famous grand ducal palace, the largest of its kind in the German empire. Besides the apartments of the Grand Duke of Baden, into whose possession the city passed in 1802, the palace contains several interesting art collections. The original building was erected during the first quarter of the 18th century, was considerably enlarged a quarter of a century later, and the left wing restored following its destruction by the bombardment of 1795 when the Austrians captured the town after it had been held by the French for a year. The building covers two and a half times as many acres as the national capitol at Washington, while the extensive palace gardens give to the city a park and recreation ground of great beauty. The promenade surrounding the town follows the line of the old fortifications which were razed when the grand duke of Baden came into possession.

"While Mannheim only dates from 1600, when it was founded by the Elector Palatinate Frederick IV and chiefly peopled by protestant refugees from Holland, it occupies the site of a village owned by the Abbey Lorsch in the eighth century, and only a short distance to the south stood the old castle of Elcholzheim. Here Baldassarre Cossa, one of the three churchmen who claimed to be pope at the same time, was imprisoned for three years, following his sensational trial by the council at Constance during which, among other crimes, he was charged (but not proved guilty) of having poisoned his predecessor, Alexander V. Cossa exercised pontifical power under the title of John XXIII, from 1410 to 1415. After he bought his way out of prison he was appointed a cardinal-bishop by Martin V, but died soon after in 1419.

"During the Thirty Years' War, the struggling town of Mannheim suffered greatly, owing to the strength and strategic importance of the castle which had been erected by Frederick IV, and which was coveted by all contenders.

"The future of Mannheim was assured in 1720 when Elector Charles Philip transferred his residence from Heidelberg, ten miles to the east, to the ducal palace which he began to build in that year. The set-back which resulted from the transference of the court to Munich in 1778 was only temporary.

"Mannheim's 'Hof-Theatre', which was begun in the same year that Declaration of Independence was signed, is famous as the playhouse in which Schiller's first works—'Robbers', 'Fiesco' and 'Cabel and Love'—were performed in association with Iffland, the noted Mannheim actor and poet.

"A tragedy which occurred in Mannheim in 1819 resulted in placing the universities in Germany under strict government supervision. This was the assassination of the noted dramatist Kotzebue by Karl Luwig Sand, a theological student and liberty enthusiast. Kotzbue, who had written 200 plays, many of which had enjoyed unprecedented success throughout Europe, had settled in Mannheim after he had been forced by his unpopularity to leave his native city of Weimar upon his return from St. Petersburg in the capacity of a secret agent of the Russian government.

"Mannheim is 164 miles by rail southeast of Cologne, thirty-nine miles north of Karlsruhe, fifty-five miles south of Frankfort, and 120 miles northeast of the fortified French city of Nancy."

SCHOOL CHILDREN FIND TEACHER DEAD

Miss Edna Strausburg of Edgerton Succumbs While Preparing Hardware School House for Entertainment.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, Nov. 29.—Miss Edna Strausburg was found dead in the school house at Hardware last evening by some of the school children. Apparently in good health, she left the Cruise home, where she boarded, yesterday to perform her duties as teacher. Arrangements had been in progress for some time for a box social and program to be held last evening, and upon leaving in the morning she informed Mrs. Cruise that she undoubtedly would be late in arriving home, as she had some decorating and extra work to perform at the school house preparatory to the evening's entertainment. Between six and seven o'clock some of the children of the school returned to the school house, in readiness for the program, and discovered Miss Strausburg lying on the floor. They in turn immediately notified some of the neighbors, who called Dr. Horton from the city.

Dr. Horton stated this morning that death was probably due to heart failure caused by overwork. She had been dead for some time prior to her discovery. Undertaker Tellefson was notified and the body was removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strausburg, in the city.

The sudden death of Miss Strausburg has cast a gloom over the entire community, as she was decidedly popular and especially so in the younger set. She was a graduate of the Edgerton high school and this was her third year as teacher at the Hardware school. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon.

Sultanabad, Persian Rug Center, Now Held By Armies of Russ Czar

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—The National Geographic society issues the following war geography bulletin concerning Sultanabad, capital of the Persian province of Irak, in the vicinity of which the Russians are reported to have administered defeat to a considerable Turkish force:

"Sultanabad is the infant city of Persia, having been founded only a little more than a hundred years ago, whereas most of the places of more than 5,000 inhabitants in this ancient kingdom have histories antedating the Christian era by centuries. The town owes its importance to the fact that it is in the center of one of the greatest rug-making districts of the Near East. It forms with Hamadan, Tabriz, and Kerman, the 'big four' of the Persian carpet world.

"The hand-woven carpets of Persia are divided into three general classes—kali, or rugs having piles and cut like plush; the nimads, or felt weaves which are seldom exported, and the gilim, with smooth surfaces much in demand for hangings, draperies and couch covers. Sultanabad is noted especially for its kali, and before the war the value of these goods exported from here and Ferahan amounted to half a million dollars annually. A British company is established in Sultanabad to handle this business.

"There are only five or six roads in Persia which are sufficiently wide and well-graded to make vehicular traffic possible and one of these passes through Sultanabad. The importance of this fact cannot be fully appreciated unless one recalls that this country, which has an area of two-thirds as large as all the states east of the Mississippi boasts of but one railroad and that is a line only six miles long, running between Teheran and a mosque just beyond the capital's city limits.

"The Sultanabad highway runs to Kum, 68 miles to the northeast and thence north to Teheran, an additional 92 miles. The part of the road from Teheran to Kum was built in 1883 at a cost of $60,000 but had to be rebuilt by the Imperial Bank of Persia, which expended $275,000 on the enterprise. The second section of the highway, from Kum to Sultanabad, was built to connect the capital with Avhaz (Ahwaz), at the head of navigation of the Karun river, from which point a fortnightly steamer service to the head of the Persian Gulf is operated, aided by a subsidy from the British government.

"Situated in a mountainous district in which considerable grain is raised, Sultanabad has an elevation of more than a mile above sea-level. The city is the center of a triangle formed by the three historic towns of Kermanshah, 150 miles in an airline to the west; Teheran, 150 miles to the northeast, and Ispahan, 150 miles to the southeast.

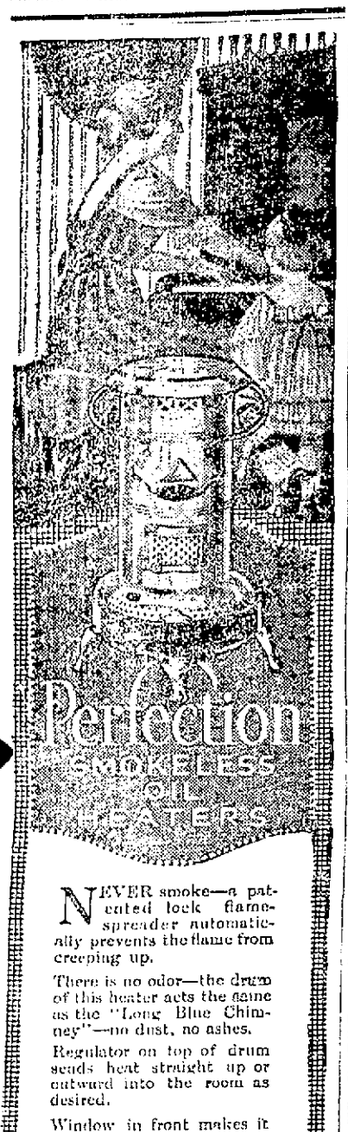

"Strangely enough, Sultanabad owes its existence to Napolean Bonaparte. In an effort to induce Persia to attack Great Britain's possessions in India, in exchange for French help against the Russians then invading Georgia, the emperor dispatched General Claude Gardane to the court of Teheran to effect the alliance. But by the time the diplomat could complete his dangerous overland journey the treaty of Tilsit (July, 1807) had been in existence five months, and his mission was thereby rendered useless for the time being. The envoy remained in Persia for more than a year, however, and during that time attempted to reorganize the native army. A recruiting center for several battalions was established in the midst of the rug-making villages of Irak, and thus began Sultanabad, which today has a population of 8,000. Gardane returned to France in 1809, was made a count and took part in the disastrous campaign in Portugal under Massena. His reverses cost him the favor which he had won with the emperor by his tractful handling of the delicate Persian mission. His subsequent career was obscure."
